

INCOME TAX OR NONE--LA FOLLETTE

10 MILLION TAX BILL IS OFFERED AS COMPROMISE

Beggs Measure Offered in Assembly on Behalf of Administration

PROVIDES INCOME TAX

Surtax Differs Through Lower Rate on First $10,000 Taxable Income

Madison—(AP)—A $10,000,000 tax bill for unemployment relief is the compromise measure submitted to the legislature on behalf of the La Follette administration.

The bill was offered in the assembly last night by Assemblyman Charles Beggs, Rice Lake, and represents a cut of $7,000,000 from the original administration measure.

In view of the new bill, it is expected that the assembly will either kill the Nelson $7,000,000 relief measure or table it pending action by the senate on the Beggs bill. Assembly passage of the latter measure is expected within a day or two.

The bill raises revenue by an additional tax on incomes, a chain store license tax and a gift tax. The latter two tax proposals are identical to those contained in the original $17,000,000 Nelson bill killed by the senate. The surtax on incomes differs in that it is lower on the first ten thousand dollars of taxable income. No surtax is levied on corporations.

A controversial feature is retained, however, in that the Beggs bill does not permit the deduction of capital losses and dividends are made subject to taxation. The surtax is imposed on the cash income of individuals in the year 1931 as follows:

One per cent on the first $2,000; 2 per cent on the third and fourth thousand; 3 per cent on the fifth and sixth; five per cent on the seventh and eighth; 8 per cent on the ninth and tenth; 12 per cent on the eleventh and twelfth; 15 per cent on the thirteenth to twenty-fifth; 20 per cent on the twenty-sixth to fiftieth; and 25 per cent on the fifty-first to one hundred thousand and 30 per cent on all incomes over $100,000.

Forestry Provision

Whereas the Nelson bill appropriated $5,000,000 for forestry work, the Beggs bill provides that all money raised in excess of $10,000,000 be diverted to this purpose. The Beggs bill also falls to provide for a reduction in real estate property taxes whereas the Nelson bill's surtax was intended to lower these taxes $1 on each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The Beggs bill said the money will be appropriated to each county, city, town and village administering outdoor poor relief on the proportion of 125 per cent of the amount which each expended for this purpose in 1931. Two-fifths of the estimated $10,000,000 would be paid immediately and the remainder in three equal installments.

Unlike the Nelson bill, the new measure does not permit the Eklund unemployment commission to administer the funds. The state industrial commission determines the amount each community is entitled to but the money is entirely under the control of counties and municipalities. The money must be used either for direct relief or for the payment of direct labor costs of public works in 1932.

In explaining the Beggs measure, administration leaders prepared a statement in which they contended that Nelson bill would raise only $5,000,000 in two years surtaxes and that the balance of the $7,000,000 would have to be raised by property taxes. They added that passage of the Beggs bill will avoid the necessity of a state property tax and render unnecessary the levying of $10,000,000 of county and local taxes "which will have to be levied on property if no relief bill is passed."

Two Slayers, Tracked Down, Kill Selves

BULLETINS

Lisbon, Portugal—(AP)—Two hundred persons were arrested and bombs, rifles and revolvers were seized in Oporto tonight when police conducted a series of raids on suspicion that a revolutionary movement was impending.

Glendora, Miss.—(AP)—Twenty feet of levee on Cassidy's bayou at the Aubrey falls plantation collapsed today before the roaring Tallahatchie river flood.

No Federal Wage Slash, Hoover Stand

Washington—(AP)—President Hoover today looked toward Capitol Hill and prepared to take a definite stand against any general federal wage cut—should proposals for such a move there reach the stage of congressional action. This was assured today in authoritative quarters.

The president has made no public statement as to the various proposals in both the senate and the house that would slash federal salaries from 10 to 20 per cent in almost all classes, but the word was passed among administration leaders at the capitol that he is ready to take an adamant stand.

Should proposals to cut wages receive widespread support, it was said definitely he will declare for maintenance of government wages. He feels definitely not only that the government must maintain its wage scale to retain capable officials in responsible offices but also that the government would set the country a bad example by any general wage reduction.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, yesterday introduced several measures that would lower the salaries of the vice president, the speaker, and all cabinet members from $15,000 to $12,000, slash congressional salaries from $10,000 to $8,000 and members of the farm board from $12,000 to $9,000.

Simultaneously Representative McGowan, Republican, Kansas, suggested an emergency reduction ranging from 10 per cent on incomes in the lower brackets to 20 per cent on salaries over $5,000.

MINNESOTA TOWN LOOTED BY BANDITS

Gang Kidnaps Marshal and Citizen and Then Robs Stores at Cambridge

Cambridge, Minn.—(AP)—Six robbers jeering at the shrill of a burglar alarm robbed and slugged the night marshal early today then kidnapped him and another resident before fleeing in two automobiles laden with spoils from raids on four stores.

Merchandise stolen by the band—believed by authorities to have been the same which raided Pine River, Minn., about 125 miles distant, in an identical manner last week—was valued at about $3,000. The men also got $165 in cash.

Planting saved-off shotguns and revolvers the invaders dared possible apprehension by making practice drives in several automobiles in the garage before selecting one best suited to their purpose.

In it and their car they stowed the loot, forced Marshal John H. Whitney, about 60, and Mark Dunning, garage attendant, into a machine and fled. The two victims were freed about 25 miles out of town.

FATHER TRIES TO FIND MISSING ELCHO WOMAN

Antigo—(AP)—A $100 reward for information leading to the whereabouts of his daughter, Mrs. Amy Elcho, 23, has been offered by Bert Jewson, merchant of Elcho, near here.

Mrs. Elcho, the mother of four children, disappeared Nov. 24 after leaving her home in Elcho for an automobile trip to Antigo. The car was found near Wautoma about a week ago.

The woman is 5 feet, 5 inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, and has brown hair and brown eyes. She wore a dark fur-trimmed coat and a red hat.

APPLIES FOR WRIT TO BAR SPECIAL ELECTION

Oshkosh—(AP)—An application for an injunction to prohibit holding of a special election to allow voters to change the commission form of government to the aldermanic has been filed by Earl Goetman, bringing the action as a citizen. The election, ordered for Feb. 13, is a needless expense, he contends.

2 MEN HELD IN JAIL AT CHILTON ADMIT ROBBERY

Suspects Confess They Participated in De Forest Bank Holdup

Chilton—(AP)—Two men held in the Calumet jail here today confessed participating in the robbery of the DeForest bank, Dec. 19.

The prisoners are Orlan C. Hall of Fond du Lac, and James E. Moss of Taycheedah. Hall admitted a number of other crimes, but Moss would acknowledge only the DeForest robbery.

Apprehension of the men followed the arrest of John Schleyer, who confessed in Madison that he was one of the DeForest robbers. Schleyer would not implicate Hall and Moss, but they were picked up because authorities learned the three had been associating intimately.

The confessions name a fourth man, now held in Madison on the charges.

Hall said the automobile used in the DeForest robbery was stolen in Fond du Lac and that license plates for it were stolen in Columbus. After the robbery, he said, they drove to Madison and then to Rosendale, where they abandoned the car.

The robbers escaped from the DeForest bank with about $400, which they scooped in the teller's cage.

DEMOCRATS TO FACE PROHIBITION ISSUE

Leaders' Certain Questions Will Be Injected Into Committee Conferences

Washington—(AP)—Democratic leaders converging here showed a certainty today that prohibition discussion will be injected into the national committee conferences over the weekend, despite determined efforts to avoid it.

Running a close second to that question is speculation on the possibility of an out and out battle for President headquarters during the meeting.

Howard Bruce of Baltimore, supporter of the Maryland governor for the presidential nomination, has reserved ten rooms at the Mayflower hotel for Friday and Saturday, in the name of the "Maryland delegation."

Thursday night Bruce will be one of the hosts at a big dinner for Ritchie in Baltimore. Democratic leaders are watching this dinner with great interest as it may be the scene of the official launching of the Ritchie campaign.

Chairman Raskob, who turned the last national committee meeting into an uproar with certain prohibition proposals, arrives in Washington today. He is expected again to bring up prohibition.

The party will hold its annual Jackson day dinner Friday night at John W. Davis' and James M. Cox, all Democratic presidential candidates in years past, will speak.

The contest for a convention city, apparently has narrowed down to a fight between Chicago, San Francisco, and Atlantic City.

2 FINES IN 2 DAYS FOR DRUNKEN DRIVER

Green Bay—(AP)—Green Bay's first drunken driver of 1932 appeared in police court yesterday. He was Walter "Boy" Van Veghel, 27, and was fined $50 and costs.

Green Bay's second drunken driver of 1932 appeared in police court today. He was Walter "Boy" Van Veghel, and was fined $100 and costs. His driver's license was revoked for six months.

Van Veghel was arrested last night at practically the same point as the night before. He did not deny his guilt, but said it was "a shame" and asked for leniency. The court disagreed.

ACCUSE VICE MAYOR OF ABUSIVE LANGUAGE

Oshkosh—(AP)—A preliminary hearing for Vice Mayor George F. Oaks, charged with "malicious use of abusive language with intent to injure and expose to ridicule," was set for Feb. 3 when his attorney appeared for him in municipal court today. The charge, which was denied by Oaks today, was brought by LaVern Retzack, former police officer.

Won't Testify

Andrew J. Volstead, prohibition enforcement act author, today said at St. Paul he would not testify at a Washington hearing on a beer bill unless summoned by subpoena.

Volstead, who is legal advisor to the district prohibition administrator here, said he had not yet received an invitation extended by Senator Bingham to appear before the senate manufactures committee during hearings on the Connecticut man's beer bill.

Sales Taxes Expected In Party Plan

Washington—(AP)—Representative Rainey, house majority leaders, said today the Democratic tax program "undoubtedly will contain some sales taxes."

This was one of the foremost direct hints yet as to just what tax course the Democrats would take. The way was being cleared for rapid consideration of the whole question, while the federal deficit continued to mount. Today it reached $1,390,538,000.

While Rainey did not specify all the sales taxes his party was considering, he said that "probably between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 will have to be raised through sales taxes."

The Illinois representative made it clear that the sales taxes would not be general, suggesting that levies be made on gasoline, automobile, radio and stamp sales.

"We will have to touch many things to raise the revenue needed to balance the budget," he said.

He suggested that the maximum income tax would be 4 per cent, which is 20 per cent less than the wartime maximum tax on big incomes.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN REFRIGERATOR CAR

Oshkosh—(AP)—The body of a young man, about 22 years old, was found this morning in a refrigerator car in the Northwestern freight yards. The only mark of identification was the words "Taylor, White hall, Wis." on the lining of his coat.

He was believed to have died from coal gas asphyxiation, although his face was badly burned. A fire, starting in a bucket of coal, had eaten through the floor of the car.

NAMED TO COMMISSION

Washington—(AP)—The state department has informed the league of nations that the appointment of Major General Frank R. McCoy, commander of the Fourth corps area, as a member of the league's financial commission on Manchuria would be acceptable.

HOOPER EXPECTS EARLY VOTE ON EMERGENCY LEGISLATION

Washington—(AP)—President Hoover felt confident today the disposition of congress was to devote itself to emergency legislation.

While he expected rapid action on his proposals designed to give business a lift, he has the decided conviction that investigation and enactment of them could not be expected within a figurative 48 hours.

Even as the word came today that leaders on Capitol Hill had given him assurances of cooperation, the half billion dollar reconstruction corporation bill was approved by a senate sub-committee.

Endorsement by the full banking committee was expected soon.

The senate was told by Senator Walcott, Republican, Connecticut, that he expected to have the corporation bill before it tomorrow.

Speedy house action seemed in line too. On that side of the capitol today, Eugene Meyer, federal reserve board governor, told the banking committee just how imperative he considered early enactment of the proposal.

CHOOSE DEATH RATHER THAN FACE ARREST

Take Own Lives When Refuge in Texas Is Surrounded by Police

Houston, Texas—(AP)—Jennings and Harry Young, Missouri slayers of six officers, accepted their mother's advice and shot themselves today rather than submit to capture by officers who surrounded their place of refuge.

Jennings Young was dead when officers broke into the house in the Houston east end and Harry, his younger brother, with two bullet wounds, was taken to a hospital, where he died soon after.

Both probably had been wounded in a gun fight with the officers before they turned their weapons on themselves.

The police received a tip today that the Youngs would be found in the house, where they had rented a room, after they had been trailed across Texas from Springfield, Mo.

Nine officers went to the place. Claude Beverly, police lieutenant advanced with a shotgun. He was fired on and returned the fire.

Gas bombs had been used and after an interval Percy Heard, chief of police, donned a mask and entered the house. He identified the body of Jennings Young, lying on the floor with two big pistols under his head, and Harry Young, whom he ordered removed to the hospital.

In their final act the Missouri desperadoes followed the advice of their mother, Mrs. J. D. Young, which was printed in the Houston morning paper, Mrs. Young at Springfield, Mo., said yesterday she hoped they would end their lives rather than submit to arrest.

TIP FROM LANDLORD

The brothers were located in the small green cottage through the tip of their landlord to police. They had "shot in" last night, their identities then being unknown to the owner of the house, while police patrolled every section of the city for them.

Police Chief Percy Heard led a squad to the cottage and surrounded it. A police lieutenant went to the door and rattled the knob.

A shot answered him, so he returned the pistol fire, as did Heard. Other officers began shooting tear gas into the cottage, retreating to the lawn as they did so.

Three shots within the house were heard.

"We are dead; come and get us," one of the brothers called out. Then, three more shots were heard.

Heard and another officer smashed the bedroom door, but were forced out by gas masks and went in. Jennings was dead. Harry was mortally wounded. He died later in a hospital.

MOTHER HYSTERICAL

Springfield, Mo.—(AP)—Mrs. Young, mother of the Young brothers, heard hysterical and nearly prostrated when told that her sons were dead. "Why did God let this happen?" she sobbed. "Now that my sons are gone I want God to take me home."

ROBBER SUSPECT ASKS FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

Spartan—(AP)—Judge R. A. Richards is considering a motion for a change of venue, filed by John Bohner, 35, accused of being one of the robbers who held up the Tomah bank. Bohner's attorney contended the suspect cannot get a fair trial in Monroe, La. Judge Richards said he would announce his decision Jan. 29.

Not Seriously Ill

Paris—(AP)—The French foreign office told the Associated Press today that the health of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand was "good for a man of his age." This statement followed reports circulated in diplomatic circles to the effect that M. Briand had suffered a paralytic stroke and rumors from other sources that he was dead.

The foreign office statement continued: "He must be careful of his throat, especially during the present weather in Paris. He has a slight cold and sees his doctor by prudence rather than necessity."

Boys Confess Firing Cabin Where 8 Died

Gallipolis, Ohio—(AP)—Sheriff Charles Swanson announced today that two inmates of the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster confessed they made a funeral pyre last spring out of a Gallipolis log cabin, burning eight persons to death.

Revenge was the motive, Swanson said, adding that the boys confessed because of starvation conditions.

The boys were Alvin Reymor of Gallipolis and Elsworth Moser of Buevius. The cabin was occupied by James White, 40, 16 and seven of his children died in the flames. Before setting fire to the cabin, the youths said, they nailed up the doors and windows so there would be no escape for the victims.

The sheriff said they admitted the crime to him and to Assistant Superintendent at Lancaster when they visited the youths at the institution.

White had moved from Gallipolis to the cabin, located in an isolated spot 12 miles west of here the night before the fire. His son, George, 12, was the only one who escaped. The log broke from the cabin, but suffered severe burns.

Swanson said Reymor and Moser were sentenced to Lancaster for automobile theft and that they would be returned here for prosecution.

DELAY ACCEPTANCE OF JAPS' APOLOGY

Ambassador Expresses "Sincere Regrets" for Attack on Vice Consul

Washington—(AP)—The American government today withheld formal acceptance of Japan's apology for the attack on American Vice Consul Culver B. Chamberlain.

Ambassador DeBuchi of Japan, expected to Secretary Stimson, on instruction of his government, Japan's "sincere regrets" over the incident, but Secretary Stimson informed the ambassador he would communicate with him further after reports of the incident were received.

He expressed gratification to the ambassador for having acted so promptly, but said after further reports were received he would again talk with him.

WOULD CONSOLIDATE U. S. ARMY AND NAVY

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Byrns of the house appropriations committee today introduced a bill to consolidate the army and navy into a department of national defense.

The Tennessee Democrat proposed that one cabinet officer replace the two who now represent the war and navy departments. There would be assistants for the army, navy and aviation.

Byrns called attention to budget estimates for 1933 allowing $342,000,000 to the navy and $301,000,000 to the army, and said:

"There is no doubt that such a consolidation will result in economies."

CLAIMS VIOLATION OF LAW IN PARTY REPORT

New York—(AP)—United States attorney George F. Medalle today said that the federal corrupt practices act had been violated in the filing of the Democratic National committee's report for 1932, which was signed by James W. Gerard, as treasurer.

Prosecution, however, Medalle said, was barred by the three year statute of limitations, the three year period prescribed by law having ended Sunday, Jan. 2, one day after Jacob J. Rosenblum, assistant U. S. attorney, confirmed reports that proper returns had not been made.

SAYS RED CROSS IS PREPARED TO ACCEPT WHEAT

Payne Declares Organization Will Distribute It, if Available

Washington—(AP)—John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross, told a house committee that if congress made available government owned wheat the Red Cross would undertake its distribution to the needy.

Payne testified before the agriculture committee which is considering measures similar to that passed by the senate yesterday to release 40,000 bushels of farm board wheat for relief.

"I do not think," Payne said, "it is my province to speak as to whether congress should enact such legislation. I assume you want to know whether we will accept it."

The Red Cross will accept that responsibility," Payne said emphatically.

Committee members listened attentively as the Red Cross head outlined his views regarding such legislation. Just before he took the stand Representative LaGuardia, New York Republican, had criticized the Red Cross attitude last year in refusing federal aid as a great disappointment.

WANTS EXTRA PROVISION

Payne recommended that provision be made to pay for the cost of processing the wheat with the by-products.

"In our view," he said, "it is vital that the cost of milling, cleaning and other processing may be paid for by the by-products. I know of no reason why the by-products should not be used to pay this cost."

Payne estimated the cost of milling 40,000,000 bushels of wheat at $5,000,000.

While Payne was giving his views to the house committee, Representative Huddleston of Alabama, was asking the senate manufacturers committee to approve direct federal appropriations for unemployment relief. Huddleston is a Democratic sponsor of a bill to that end.

Representing the Birmingham district, he told of conditions in that industrial center, estimating 25,000 wage earners out of employment there.

PAYMENT IS HALTED BY LACK OF FUNDS

Sixth Installment on Government's Program Delayed at Capital

Washington—(AP)—The sixth installment of the government's $700,000,000 building program which was to have been sent to congress this month will be held up because of lack of funds to pay for it.

The program, which was started before the war and dropped until after the close of hostilities, was designed to provide new post offices throughout the nation. Already $32,411,569 of buildings have been completed and more than $32,900,000 more were under contract.

The sixth installment which would have gone to congress for appropriation this year would have been chosen from allocations previously made and submitted to congress last February.

The allocations included proposed buildings in all states of the Union and the towns would have been selected according to the urgency of the projects for the separate localities.

The treasury prepared a list of cities which would have been submitted to congress for appropriations but the budget bureau did not call for it and it has never been made public.

The treasury said there was some thing more it could do and that the budget bureau held that the lack of funds made it inappropriate to send up another installment.

The director said the treasury expected to spend $100,000,000 this year for public buildings and $120,000,000 next year. This, he said, would keep the entire force of the treasury working at top speed for the next two years.

STATES HE WILL VETO ANY OTHER RELIEF PROJECT

Governor Accuses Foes in Senate of Putting Burden on Property

DEFENDS OLD TAX PLAN Forestry Program for Single Men Left Open in Special Message

Madison—(AP)—Vigorously defending his plea for the use of the state's taxing power to re-distribute wealth, Gov. Philip F. LaFollette informed the Wisconsin legislature in a special message today that he intends to veto any unemployment relief bill not financed by surtaxes on Wisconsin's net cash incomes, which he estimated, total $250,000,000.

That was the governor's answer to the senate majority which last week killed his $17,000,000 relief program and passed in its place the $7,000,000 measure introduced by Senator Philip Nelson of Maple, and Independent.

He accused the senate conservatives who voted for the Nelson bill of seeking ultimately to place the 1932 relief burden on general property and announced that no bill which does that will get his signature.

He also accused them of deliberately delaying action on his original proposal until after the 1931 general property tax bills had come out on Dec. 21, so as to make it "practically impossible" to grant the $4,750,000 in refunds he suggested.

"Practically impossible" was taken to mean that the governor has given up the idea of permitting 1931 general property taxes to the extent of $1 for each $1,000 of valuation.

Nor does he specifically recommend again the $5,000,000 forestry program for unemployed single men as contained in his original bill, although that is a matter left open.

He did adhere to the principle laid down in his first message to the special session, in which he insisted that all incomes above the "subsistence level" be taxed at rates graduated upward, that deductions be included, and that no deductions for capital losses be allowed.

Both the governor's program and Senator Nelson's bill provided for income surtaxes, the former on a broad scale of 1 to 30 per cent of the total 1931 incomes, the latter on the basis of 45 per cent of the normal income tax during 1931 and 1932. These rates applied to individuals after specified exemptions, exclusive of corporation tax increases.

Nelson's plan taxed capital gains and allowed deductions of capital losses. The governor's did neither. He proposed to tax dividends; Nelson did not.

The message charged that the Nelson bill and other conservative backed measures were drawn in such a way as not to yield the amount of their appropriations from the income taxpayers and to require in the end a levy upon real estate.

Remedy For Depression

"No member of this legislature and no responsible person outside it has yet attempted to dispute the fact that the cause of this depression is the lack of purchasing power," LaFollette said. "For has anyone denied that this being the cause, the only immediate effective remedy is the use of the taxing power to restore in some measure the consumption of our production of the farm and factory. The only answer is an avalanche of hard names and bitter abuse. But hard names and bitter abuse will not answer the laws of economics, nor their operation."

While Nelson, an Independent, introduced two compromise bills passed by the senate, the first, for $6,000,000, having been killed by the assembly and the second now pending, LaFollette held the conservatives responsible for the defeat of his program and accused Wisconsin newspapers of misrepresenting it.

In a message he took the whole legislature to task with the statement:

"You have now been in session six weeks. You have not adopted a single bill to meet this problem. The public is entitled to know the reason for this inexcusable delay. The reason is clear when once it is extricated from the mass of legislative technicalities."

"The grave emergency which faces Wisconsin and every other state in the Union requires the expenditure of money. Behind all the long speeches and motivating all the legislative maneuvers of the past six weeks, there has been just one simple but very important question: Who is to pay the bill? Is the necessary money to be raised from those with substantial net incomes, or shall it be imposed upon farmers, home owners and small business men?"

Charges Evasions

"Those who propose to load this burden upon farmers, homes and places of business do not say so frankly. They cloak their defense of one form of wealth under every sort of specious argument; they introduce this or that substitute; they

Gandhi Calls On Christians To Help In "Struggle Of Peace"

BOYCOTT MOVE IS INAUGURATED BY FOLLOWERS

54 Groups Linked With Nationalist Congress Are Declared Illegal

Bombay — (P)—Mahatma Gandhi sought today to enlist the Christians of India in his fight against the British government, calling it a Christian "struggle of peace."

In the meantime the battle was well begun with Nationalists and their followers pressing a strict boycott on British and foreign goods and the government retaliating with more group arrests.

With one blow 45 organizations affiliated with the Nationalist Congress in Calcutta and its suburbs were declared unlawful by the government.

In his appeal to Christians Gandhi said: "I have full trust that in the present struggle you who tender your loyalty to One whom you call the Prince of Peace will not be behind any other community in a struggle which is essentially based on peace."

He urged Christians to adopt the spinning wheel and homespun garments and to renounce drink.

In a farewell telegram to Lord Irwin, former viceroy with whom he concluded the Delhi pact last year, bringing temporary peace in the conflict, he said: "Pray believe me, I tried my best, but failed. Nevertheless, I do not lose hope and, God willing, I shall retain the same spirit you believe actuated me during that sacred week in Delhi. I shall not believe your certificate."

Madeline Slade, his faithful disciple, went today with Mrs. Gandhi and Davidas Gandhi to the mahatma's shrine of brotherhood and love at Ahmadabad to pray for his release and India's emancipation. They expected to be arrested afterward on charges of having joined the army of civil resistance.

The mahatma, himself, vowed he would never return to the shrine until India is free.

Police took possession of the headquarters of the congress committee at Patna after arresting Rajendra Prasad, president of the Nationalist congress, and six leaders of the provincial congress, Prasad had just been appointed to succeed Vallabhai Patel as president of the national body when Patel was taken to jail with Gandhi yesterday.

Dr. M. A. Ansari was appointed to succeed Mr. Prasad. He is the third person to hold the office in two days. The Nationalists' cause received some reinforcement by the offer of support from a part of the powerful All-India Moslem congress at New Delhi. The Moslem congress split, the president and secretary resigned, and a resolution was passed advising that "frontier" ordinances and arrests are having no other effect than to banish the idea of the general mass of the Moslem people cooperating with the government."

Heretofore the government has had the support of a vast majority of the Moslems. The disaffected members may go over to Gandhi, they said.

Some members of the business community showed a disposition to depreciate the viceroy's rejection of Gandhi's appeal for an interview last week. E. C. Benthall, president of the foremost European firm in India, sent a long message to Prime Minister Mac Donald in which he said a grave situation is arising out of the viceroy's refusal to see the Mahatma and inquiring if the government is prepared to protect the Indian community from the inevitable consequences of the civil disobedience movement.

The Indian merchants' chamber adopted a resolution deploring the viceroy's attitude and requesting the government release Gandhi.

Kidnap Gang Trapped by Woman's Ruse

Eight men, one of them a former assistant state's attorney, are in custody in Chicago charged with kidnappings in several states. It is charged that Fred J. Blumer, Wisconsin brewer, John J. Lynch, Chicago race track news operator, and James Hackett, Blue Island, Ill., gambler, were among their many victims. Their capture resulted when one of them, Gus Sanger, fell in love with Mrs. Georgia Gecht, whom they held as hostage when they released her husband, Dr. Max Gecht, to permit him to secure cash for his ransom. He paid, and Mrs. Gecht was freed. Then Sanger made a date with her, and she kept it with police nearby. Sanger was captured, and his admissions led to the other arrests. Seven of the gangsters are shown, left to right, seated: John J. Pingree, alleged master mind of gang; Edward Finen, William Thomas and Oscar Martin. Standing: Guy Wyckoff, Ward Swallow, who until February, 1929, was an assistant state's attorney in Chicago, and Albert Russell.

DEATH OF BOY ACCIDENTAL, IS JURY'S VERDICT

John Badenoch, Driver of Car, Freed of Blame at Inquest

A coroner's jury yesterday afternoon brought in a verdict of "unavoidable accident" in the death of James Fourness, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fourness, 324 W. Front-st., in an inquest conducted by Coroner H. E. Ellsworth and District Attorney Stanley A. Stadl at the city hall.

The Fourness boy died at 7:30 Saturday evening from injuries received when the bicycle on which he was riding was struck by a car driven by John Badenoch, 1334 W. Pine-st., line inspector for the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. The accident occurred at the intersection of S. Memorial-dr. and W. Prospect-ave about 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

The youngster suffered a severe fracture of the skull, multiple fracture of the left leg and a fractured left arm.

Testimony at the inquest revealed that until 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when Badenoch appeared at the police station and confessed that he drove the car that struck the Fourness boy, police were seeking a "hit and run" driver. Badenoch testified that at the hospital he denied to Mr. and Mrs. Fourness that he was the driver of the car.

Seeks Fourness Home
He said he retired for the night, but at 2 o'clock Sunday morning dressed and, with his wife, went to the Fourness residence to tell the parents of the dead boy that he was the driver. He said he was unable to find the Fourness residence and then drove to the police station, where he explained the accident.

He said he was driving north on S. Memorial-dr. at a speed of about 20 miles an hour and that he did not see the boy on the bicycle until the youngster was about 15 feet away from the car. He said he continued north on S. Memorial-dr. and then returned, placed the boy in his car and took him to St. Elizabeth hospital.

The only witnesses to the accident were Irene and Robert Balliet, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen D. Balliet, S. River-dr. The youngsters said they saw the bicycle and rider tossed into the curbing after being struck by the automobile. They were unable to identify either the driver or car. Robert Vincent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vincent, 621 W. Fifth-st., who was with the Fourness boy a few minutes before the accident, also testified. He said he did not witness the accident, but arrived on the scene a few minutes after it happened.

Other testimony was offered by Dr. D. M. Gallagher, Officer Albert Deligon and Police Chief George T. Deligon.

The coroner's jury was composed of E. L. Williams, Theodore Heid, Earl Lutz, William Beyer, Dennis Carroll and R. O. Hecker, all of this city.

He retired about six months ago. Surviving are three sons, a daughter and a sister.

Senate Tries To Speed Up Hoover Plan

Washington — (P)—Under the added spur of President Hoover's unexpected message of yesterday the senate sought today to extract from committee one at least of the items on the administration economic program.

The repeated assurances of congressional leaders that party politics would not be allowed to hold up the various plans urged by the chief executive for restoring confidence, found a banking sub-committee still trying to adjust differences on the principal item in the program: The half billion dollar reconstruction corporation measure. They hoped during the day, however, to get the bill up before the parent committee for a quick report to the senate.

It was possible, however, that a second measure of the domestic program, the one to increase capital of the federal land banks, would get through first. It has passed the sub-committee stage.

There was no voice of dissent on Capitol Hill from the approving chorus which met Mr. Hoover's urging that enactment of the reconstruction measure and the rest of the program was even more urgent than appeared when congress met. Leaders of each party, in both senate and house, gave their word that the measures would go through as fast as possible. They already had pledged non-partisan consideration.

Points still unsettled in the sub-committee consideration of the reconstruction plan included as the group met: The advisability of making closed banks eligible for loans; the provision to make the corporation's paper eligible for federal reserve discount; and the question of having the government issue bonds for the entire $2,000,000,000 which the corporation will be authorized to lend, instead of subscribing the proposed half billion, with the remainder secured by issuance of debentures.

PROPOSE EDISON FOR SCHOOL NAME

Two Ballots Taken at Meeting of Parent-teacher Association

Thomas A. Edison is the proposed new name for First Ward school popularly voted Monday night by parents and teachers in the district at the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association. There was little opposition to the name although four others had been proposed.

Two ballots were taken on the names with the final ballot deciding between the name of the American scientist and that of Miss Myrtle Culbertson, outstanding educator in the city and teacher for several years at First Ward school. Other names included in the vote were Carrie Morgan school, Charles Lindbergh and The Samuel Plantz.

More than 50 parents and teachers attended the meeting to vote on the new name which will be presented as a recommendation to the board of education. Several years ago the board renamed the present Jefferson, Washington, and McKinley schools. Citizens in First ward at that time did not want the name of the school changed. Recently the fact that First Ward was the only school in the city which did not bear a significant name prompted the parents and teachers in that district to change the school name.

Jay I. Williams, music instructor in the public schools, and members of the violin classes at St. Paul school, presented a musical lecture as a part of the program. Mr. Williams explained the importance of string music in city grade schools and illustrated his method of work.

JAPANESE OPEN DRIVE AGAINST BANDIT FORCES

Garrison in Hsinmin District Repulses Attack by 500 Chinese

Mukden, Manchuria — (P)— Japanese troops today began a cleanup drive against bandits in the Hsinmin district following two severe clashes last night in which at least four Japanese were killed and six wounded, while fleeing Chinese left 30 or 40 dead behind.

According to a headquarters communiqué the first battle began at 7:30 p. m. when 500 Chinese swooped down on Hsinmin and were repulsed by a comparatively small Japanese garrison. The Japanese losses in this encounter were one general and three civilian residents killed and four soldiers and two civilians wounded. It is believed, the communiqué said, that the 30 or 40 bodies of Chinese dead found represent only a portion of the Chinese casualties.

The Japanese command anticipates a good deal of fighting of this character throughout the winter, it was said, because the complete evacuation of the regulars from Chin-chow is not considered to have solved the problem of keeping the Manchurian railways and the Japanese army's lines of communication free from the raids of thousands of irregulars who still remain in the area.

The communiqué said the last troop train carrying the Chinese Chin-chow army from Manchuria passed Shanhai-kwan at 5 o'clock a. m. Sunday. Altogether it took 44 trains to carry Yung Chen's army into China proper.

A second encounter took place about midnight two kilometers northeast of Hsinmin where 100 Chinese attacked 30 Japanese infantrymen who had been sent to repair a railway bridge. The Japanese were hard pressed until reinforcements arrived, scattering the Chinese.

The bridge at this point was dynamited by Chinese irregulars last night. Another detachment from the Japanese garrison at Hsinmin proceeded earlier in the evening five miles to the southwest where another railway bridge was burned and tracks destroyed.

EXPECT MANY STORE HEADS AT CONFERENCE

Meetings to Be Conducted Here Jan. 12 and 13 by Extension Division

Appleton business men who participate in the store managers' conference, scheduled for Jan. 12 and 13, will hear what merchants and other business and professional men elsewhere are doing to safeguard their credit business and maintain efficient collection systems.

These two subjects will be presented in three addresses by Dr. H. R. Doering, who, with Dean Richard E. Ellingwood, will offer the formal talks during the two-day conference. Ellingwood will suggest ways of improving advertising to build business. Both men are associated with the University of Wisconsin Extension division, which in cooperation with Appleton vocational school is staging the two-day conference.

While retailers' problems are given particular attention, the addresses will contain suggestions that are equally adaptable to the needs of other business and professional men of the city, according to Herb Heilig, director of the vocational school.

Sessions will be held at the vocational school and at hotels in conjunction with service club meetings, according to tentative arrangements. Full program details will be published in a few days.

The opening session will be given to a discussion by Doering on strategy in granting credit, looking to the prevention of bad debt losses. This is intended to furnish a background for the two evening talks on collections.

Survey Results
According to Herb Heilig, Doering will present for the first time the results of a statewide survey of the collection policies of leading merchants as applied to conditions of business depression. These findings are expected to point the way to more effective methods of collection.

Appleton business men may find these suggestions valuable in formulating collection policies suited to their special needs. Most of the emphasis will be given to the collection of slow and past-due accounts.

In both talks on collections, all the subject material will be presented in slides depicting specific collection methods. The speaker also will emphasize how ledger accounts can be used to build up sales volume and good will for the business man. Attention will be given to the bad check problem, tracing skips, and preventing accounts from becoming outlaid. Sample collection letters and forms will be exhibited.

Both leaders will be available by appointment for interviews in places of business, where they may be consulted concerning specific credit, collection, and advertising problems, and other phases of retailing. These interviews will be given during the day when regular conference sessions are not scheduled.

The general orders on safety, which provide rules for safety and safety devices in state industries, were first adopted in 1911. The contemplated revision in the rules year is the case since 1915.

The advisory committee charged with rules revision includes: George F. Haydon, Milwaukee; R. C. Salisbury, Cudahy; Fred Schwarze, Milwaukee; S. H. Slaymaker, Beloit; George R. Zellmer, Oshkosh; J. F. Friederick, Milwaukee; Fred E. Gastrow, Madison, and R. Mae Keown, Madison.

RETAIL DIVISION TO SELECT COMMITTEE

A new committee which is to formulate plans for cooperative trade events during the coming year will be selected at a meeting of the chamber of commerce retail division in the chamber offices at 9:30 Wednesday morning. The division also will discuss the store managers' conference to be conducted here Jan. 12 and 13 at Appleton vocational school by the University of Wisconsin Extension division.

An adjustable thumb rest has been devised for fitting to the handle of a golf club. It is to teach players how to hold their hands.

Retail Conference Leaders

Dr. H. R. Doering, (left) and Dean Richard E. Ellingwood, of the University of Wisconsin Extension division, will be in Appleton Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 12 and 13, to conduct a store managers' conference which will be presented here by the extension division in cooperation with Appleton vocational school. Sessions will be held at the vocational school and at hotels in conjunction with luncheons of service clubs, according to tentative arrangements.

TWO ROBINS, SEEN HERE YESTERDAY, MAY BE LEFT-OVERS

Time was when the first robin of spring was obviously the first robin of spring, but with present weather conditions there's no telling whether a robin in hopping around in the snow is a hangover from last season, or the first harbinger of balmy weather. Mrs. A. E. Parnell, 433 W. Prospect-ave, in ordinary times would have the distinction of having seen the first robin, but she isn't so sure that the two fed on her back porch yesterday weren't left-overs from last fall. Whichever they were, they were avidly interested in the bread crumbs thrown out to them.

START RELOCATION OF CABLES, LINES ON U. S. HIGHWAY 10

Phone Co. Project Necessitated by Erection of Railroad Overhead

Relocation of portions of long distance telephone lines and cables on U. S. Highway 10, two miles west of Appleton, has been started. It was announced this morning by H. M. Teacher Gets Letter Mailed 17 Years Ago

Yellowed and dirt streaked, a picture postcard mailed 17 years ago, was received Saturday by Clement D. Ketchum, Appleton high school teacher.

The postcard was mailed at Milwaukee Nov. 14, 1914, before any of Ketchum's present science students were even born. An old letter to his sister, now married, accompanied the card to Eau Claire where it was received by Ketchum's father, C. E. Ketchum.

The card and letter, together with seven other pieces of mail, were found last week behind a desk at the Milwaukee postoffice. The desk, being stationary had not been moved for 25 years and the mail was found only when workmen were making alterations at the postoffice. The date on the mail is "Dec. 28, 1931" but the date on the card which was written in German, bears the date "Nov. 14, 1914."

"It was just the kid brother when that card was written," Mr. Ketchum said. "The writer was an interior decorator from Milwaukee, whom the family knew when he lived in Eau Claire while decorating St. Patrick church there."

"The letter and card were probably written after he returned to Milwaukee to work and the card was written in German to me because I was studying the subject in high school at the time."

Mr. Ketchum says that the family lost touch with the decorator who mailed the letter. The other pieces of mail were addressed to persons living in Sinsinawa, Grant-co.

60 Wire Weavers Quit Work To Consider Proposed Cut In Wages

REDUCTION OF 15 PER CENT IS SUGGESTED

Both Sides Express Hope That Satisfactory Agreement Will Be Reached

Protesting a proposed wage decrease of about 15 per cent, approximately 60 wire weavers Monday temporarily left their work at the Appleton Wire Works and the Wisconsin Wire Works.

The wire weavers, all members of the Wisconsin division of the American Wire Weavers Protective association, today were considering their employers' proposal. Whether they will accept the reduction or refuse to return to work unless the old wage scale is maintained remains to be determined.

There are 46 men affected by the action at the Appleton Wire Works, according to G. E. Buchanan, secretary and treasurer. John D. Watson, secretary and manager of the Wisconsin Wire Works, reported that 13 men discontinued work at that plant.

Wire weavers at the International Wire Works, Menasha, have not been employed since early in July, when they walked out of the factory in protest to a proposed wage decrease there.

Hope that a satisfactory agreement would be reached was expressed today by employers and employees. It was pointed out that no strike has been declared, but that the employees have merely discontinued their duties for the time being pending consideration of the proposed wage cut.

The employers, it was reported, said that the present wages are on approximately the same level as at the close of the World war, and that they cannot operate their factories on a satisfactory basis unless wages are reduced.

Appleton officers of the Wisconsin division of the American Wire Weavers Protective association are Carl Fahme, president; William McFarlane, corresponding secretary; and Kurt Kozietzke, member of the executive board.

FAVORS CONTROL OF BUS TRANSPORTATION

Washington (AP)—One of its examiners today told the Interstate Commerce commission it should have full authority over motor buses and trucks operating in interstate commerce.

In addition to recommendations for legislation for such control, the examiner, Leo J. Flynn said the railroads should be permitted to enter the motor transport business and to acquire lines already in existence.

The railroads blame competition from trucks and buses for much of their present difficulty. To meet this, some southwestern roads in the past year have inaugurated store to door delivery of freight.

RECORD CROWD OF WAR VETERANS AT LEGION MEETING

Post Service Officer Can Tell of Benefits, Vets Are Told

"If you want to know anything about the various types of war veteran benefits, see your post or county service officer, Alfred C. Bosser," ex-servicemen were told last night at the meeting of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion, 1000 Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee, state department service officer, and Alfred Freeman, Milwaukee, of the state rehabilitation board. Both men discussed phases of war veteran benefits and paid tribute to Mr. Bosser for the work he has done in Appleton.

Last night's meeting probably was the best attended in Oney Johnston post history. It was estimated that nearly 500 men were present.

James Burns, state department service officer, opened the service program by briefly reviewing the benefits veterans may receive, compensation, disability allowances, and hospitalization. He spent a few minutes reviewing phases of the difference between the Wisconsin veterans' benefits and those of the federal government. He then asked veterans to ask questions.

Following the meeting Mr. Burns met with veterans who wanted to discuss the benefits in privacy. Before closing his talk before the assembled group he commented on the fact that Appleton and the county always maintained an interest in service work.

Explains Benefits

Alfred Freeman, Milwaukee, as a member of the state rehabilitation board, explained the various benefits the state of Wisconsin offers service men, that they still can secure cash or educational bonuses if they can show they were accredited to Wisconsin when they enlisted. He also discussed state hospitalization for veterans that they can secure aid from the Wisconsin Memorial hospital at Madison as well as from the veterans' bureau hospital at Milwaukee.

The fact that state veterans can go to the Wisconsin Veterans home at Waupaca, if they can prove disability, and that the Adjutant General's Office at Madison has all Wisconsin service records on file there and that almost any service connection can prove through that office, also was mentioned.

Mrs. August Arens, a member of the post auxiliary, reviewed work the Oney Johnston post and the Auxiliary have done locally for families of veterans and for veterans. She said 35 baskets were distributed at Christmas time, the baskets containing food and toys for children. Toys were donated by local department stores.

680 Members in Post

It was reported the post has 680 members and hopes to have more before the beginning of the state mid winter conference at Madison next week.

The legion rifle team now numbers 25 men. Clarence Baetz reported, and has started competitive shoots with other posts. The next shoot will be held Saturday afternoon and evening at the armory.

Outagamieco council of the legion will hold its next meeting at Hortonville Thursday night, Jan. 23.

The post voted to turn over proceeds of the December charity fight to the city poor fund. The next fight card was announced for Jan. 21. Legion bowlers also were asked to remember the state meet at Sheboygan in March.

Hampton Purdy, member of the post scout troop, was awarded the Eagle badge in a ceremony previous to the opening of the meeting, and Bruce Purdy received a bronze palm to add to his Eagle scout badge. The boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Purdy, are members of Troop 4.

Famous Crusading Editor Former Appleton Resident

A description of Fremont Older, famous editor and crusader for the under dog, on his seventy-sixth birthday, appeared in a state paper Sunday. Older, now editor of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, was formerly a resident of Appleton.

Once an editor who lived for scandal, Older, in his early days on the old San Francisco Bulletin, dragged anyone and everyone through the mire for a story. Then he changed, and now he is the champion of the down and out criminal, believing that in every man there is some good. His farm near San Jose, Calif., is manned entirely by parolees, pardoned and otherwise reformed criminals. He believes Tom Mooney is "an unfortunate victim of the miscarriage of justice," and his continuous but thus far fruitless battle to liberate Mooney constitutes Older's most gallant defeat in life.

An excerpt from the article gives a description of the man, who, as a boy, was an anathema to Appleton: "At work in the ramshackle old building on New Montgomery street that houses his presses, Fremont Older is like a gaunt spider in his web, running mentally first on one tangent and then on another, eternally in quest of something to whet the insatiable appetite of the 'news hawk' within him.

"Seated in his throne-like chair exactly in the center of the crowded editorial room, he makes constant use of the seven telephone lines that added to his spiderlike appearance.

"His stare is mopeish and tumultuous, intermittently, but his voice carries a sustained note of reserve and power that immediately tells rate, wheedling, domineering, or sobbing persons that:

"There is no man in America with enough millions to buy me, nor enough power to intimidate me when I think that I am doing my duty!"

Intolerant of injustice

"His own unflinching courage, ominous pose and fearless response draws about him men and women—reporters, photographers, subeditors, ad men, clerks, and composers—whose loyalty knows no compromise.

"His almost fanatical intolerance of injustice, his economy of speech, his fluency of writing, and his utter disregard for financial reward all combine to make him a type of man that is fast disappearing—a real friend, a good citizen, a trusted editor of a 'fighting' newspaper, who is admired and respected by all who have nothing to hide."

The boy is William Adams, 19, of Rogers City, Mich., a former student at Notre Dame.

His heart-broken mother is Mrs. Frank J. Adams, who rushed here to see him.

"Is that William?" asked the mother as her son was brought out from the cotton fields in prison garb, his black hair cropped close. Wardens S. L. Todhunter left them as they fell into each other's arms.

Worried About Comfort

Mother like, Mrs. Adams inspected her son's sleeping quarters and the kitchen. She worried about his laundry and wanted to know if he had plenty of cover on cold nights.

"If we could have afforded to send him to Notre Dame this year, this wouldn't have happened," Mrs. Adams told the warden. "But we couldn't. He couldn't get work. He tried to join the navy. He didn't want to be a burden, so he left home."

With a Michigan companion, George Lamb, 30, William set out to seek work and adventure. They couldn't find work. But the adventure they sought landed them in the country jail at Duquene, Ark.

On Oct. 9, the boys stopped Noel Runyan, Duquene auto salesman, and asked him for a ride. Runyan was hit over the head with a tire iron and thrown into a roadside ditch, unconscious. The boys were caught a few hours later.

Get Quick Sentence

At 9 the next morning, a special grand jury was convened at 9:15 it brought in an indictment charging assault to murder. At 9:30 the boys pleaded guilty and were sentenced to 25 years each. This was less than 24 hours after the crime was committed.

The sentence brought sharp controversy among many Arkansas newspapers and it was this controversy which got into the newspapers and was seen by William's sister, who told their mother that William was in prison for 25 years.

Certain newspapers contended that the sentence of the two boys, while dubious just, was unusually swift and very severe for this type of first offenders.

No Parole for 8 Years

Warden Todhunter cheered Mrs. Adams by assuring her that her son and his companion would both be eligible for parole after they had served one-third of their sentences.

"I know William will be good, but eight years is a long time," Mrs. Adams said.

It will be the first time in her life, she said, that her boy has ever been away from her at Christmas. But there is still hope, Governor Parnell and the pardon board will be asked to do something about it.

ATTACK ON U. S. CONSUL BRINGS TOKIO APOLOGY

Civilian Interpreter Dismissed, Soldiers to Be Punished, Envoy Says

Tokio (AP)—The Japanese foreign office today instructed Ambassador Debutch at Washington to express its regrets to the state department over the attack upon Vice Consul Culver B. Chamberlain at Mukden, Manchuria.

The civilian interpreter who was one of the group of three that attacked the young American has been dismissed, the foreign office said, and the others involved will be punished.

Mukden, Manchuria (AP)—The question of reparation by the Japanese military for the attack upon United States Vice Consul Culver B. Chamberlain yesterday has become one between the governments at Washington and Tokio.

American Consul General Myrl S. Myers received apologies yesterday from the acting consul here, but he declined to treat the assault as an incident capable of being settled by local American and Japanese authorities and sent all the information to the state department at Washington.

American and European residents of Mukden said recent developments have engendered a resentment among the Japanese forces in Manchuria and Japanese civilian patriots especially against the United States and Great Britain.

Japanese patrols frequently halt foreigners in automobiles, they said, and question them at the point of bayonets.

The civilian interpreter and two soldiers who stopped Mr. Chamberlain, told the following story, according to Lieut. Col. Matsui of General Honjo's staff:

Japanese Story

At about 6:30 that morning the three were walking on and on the border of the Japanese railway town when Chamberlain's automobile approached. They ordered the car to halt. It was flying an American flag, but Chinese, they said, had been misusing the flag and they were unable to take it at its face value.

They asked Chamberlain to show his papers and he offered his card and passport "arrogantly," they said. The civilian interpreter had some difficulty recognizing the passport. When they were satisfied with Chamberlain's identity they told him to pass on.

Chamberlain, in his written report of the attack said:

"I am at a loss to account for this entirely unprovoked, brutal attack. Had I resisted, I believe I probably would have been shot. It is emphasized that my identity must have been realized when the attack was made."

When his automobile was stopped, he said, the two soldiers in uniform were standing by with rifles in a threatening attitude. The civilian questioned him persistently for five minutes, he said, while the rifles continued to be pointed by the other two.

Refused To Give Name

"Somewhat annoyed," he said, he asked by what authority he was further detained and the civilian sneered at him when he asked him, "Then asked him for his card," he said, "which seemed to incense each of them for they began addressing me in obviously uncompromising language, presumably Japanese."

"The civilian then, without provocation, aimed a blow at my head, which I partly dodged. One uniformed man came closer in a menacing manner." Chamberlain said he then reentered the automobile. "The civilian, entering the car, rained blows, aiming his trade," he said. He was ordered by the rifles and gave up any notion of resisting, only protecting himself with his arms.

The civilian repeated the attack at least three times and then "one of the uniformed men, through the open door on the other side of the automobile, pounded me with the muzzle of his rifle and struck me several times in the face. The soldier withdrew while the civilian struck me on two paring blows. Then, with their rifles still leveled, I was told I could proceed."

Smiles From Congress

By the Associated Press

This marathon balloting on the election of a president pro tempore in the senate has gone so far that many members forget they are supposed to vote and answer "here."

The latest vote found Senator Sheppard of Texas, so busy talking with a neighbor that three other Democrats had to call him when his turn came. Senator Moses of New Hampshire, cause of it all, amused the senators by announcing he was paired with Senator Pittman, so neither could vote. The two are the regular Republican and Democratic candidates for the office.

The house has a new economy program to engage it. Comptroller General McCall asked it to authorize less taking of oaths of office in the government departments. Every time a man gets a new executive job he has to swear fealty all over again, though he never left government service. Adding up the time taken by the jobholder and the clerk who has to administer the oath, McCall pronounced the practice costly.

Talking about food for unemployed, city-bred Senator Copeland of New York, observed to the senate: "On the farm you can always go out and parol a rooster."

"The roosters are all gone," shot back Peter Norbeck of South Dakota.

"Oh, no, roosters are born every day," said the New Yorker to prove there was something he did not know about farms.

A bad time is being had by all in the house bill room. The holidays gave members time to think up hundreds of new bills. They rushed them in. The holidays also gave the controlling Democrats time to put in a whole new set of non-Republican clerks.

With no old hand to guide them, the bewildered newcomers have sunk into confusion, with representatives, secretaries, newspapermen clamoring for information and upsetting the un-indexed pile.

79 COUPLES GIVEN DIVORCES IN 1931, COURT RECORDS SHOW

Although the number of divorces granted in Outagamie-co for the year ending Dec. 31 was 79, or two less than the previous year the number is greater than 1929 and 1928. Records of Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of court for Outagamie-co, shows 79 divorces in 1931: 61 in 1930, 75 in 1929 and 63 in 1928. The 1931 records were forwarded to the state registrar of vital statistics yesterday.

Of the divorces granted in 1931, the defendants were women in 26 instances. Practically all the divorces involved bona fide residents of the county, less than 10 being to persons residing in some other part of the state.

LOCAL TAXATION TREND LOWER, SURVEY SHOWS

Milwaukee (AP)—The trend of local taxation in Wisconsin is sharply downward, it is revealed by a survey just completed by the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce.

Almost unanimously city and village councils and county boards have lightened the burden of the taxpayer, and have accomplished this without materially affecting services of local governments, according to E. H. Krueger, general secretary of the chamber. The action of officials has been good politics and good statecraft, Krueger added.

INCOME TAX OR NONE, IS EDICT OF LA FOLLETTE

move for an adjournment or take a recess. But behind every move they have made there is one objective: To protect one form of wealth from paying its share of the costs of this emergency.

"I cannot recommend any program which does not contribute toward the solution of the basic cause of this suffering and hardship as well as the alleviation of its immediate effects. I shall veto any bill which proposes to make the situation worse by loading the costs of those who have already been hit the hardest.

"Any relief bill that I approve must make a substantial relief appropriation to the towns, cities, villages and counties and provide financing from net cash incomes. It would be folly to add to the tax burden of the poorest and refuse to place some share upon that form of wealth which escapes the blighting effect of the depression.

"If the conservative majority in the senate adheres to the position which it has taken thus far, that all or a substantial part of the burden shall be placed upon general property rather than those who can and should contribute, then we have no common ground between us. Unless there is a two-thirds majority in both houses to override the executive veto, there will be no appropriation bill entailing additional burdens on general property."

Center of Struggle
Fundamentally the fight between the governor and the senate revolves now around the question of taxing dividends and deducting losses from stocks, bonds and land investments from the income to be taxed.

"Those with large incomes have heretofore largely escaped our income tax because dividends were exempted from taxation and because losses from stocks and bonds could be written off," the governor said. "If dividends and capital losses are allowed to be deducted then, no matter how high the rates may go, no substantial tax will be paid by those who had the largest incomes in 1931."

The governor asserted that since he delivered his first message the number of unemployed has increased to 130,000, the number of destitute families has risen to more than 50,000 and that his estimate on Nov. 24 that $12,000,000 would be needed for local relief and the program he outlined were conservative.

After exemptions of $800 for single persons and $2,400 for married persons with two children there were net incomes amounting to $250,000,000 in 1931, he said he was informed. "Thus if we are actually to take the entire $250,000,000 of net cash income, nevertheless every single man and every married man with two children would still have more upon which to live than 80 per cent of the families of the United States had in 1928. CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

PSYCHOLOGY AND SENSE

In its broader aspects, all successful bidding at the contract table is based on psychology. To attain the best results in bidding, you must have a keen insight into the mental level of your partner and opponents. This, of course, means psychology in its better sense. Unfortunately, however, there has grown up throughout the country an immense amount of so-called "psychic" bidding at the contract table, which is anything but psychological, in fact, it is mostly cheap, coarse bluff. However, there are many hands when opponents can be confused as to honor-trick strength and distributional values by bids which may temporarily mislead your partner. Such an instance occurred in Hand No. 2 of the eleventh rubber of my match with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz to test the relative merits of the Approach-Forcing System (sometimes called the "One over One") and the Official System of Contract bidding.

The hand:
Board No. 41.
East-Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

Mr. Lenz	Mr. Culbertson
♠ 3	♠ 8 7 6 5
♥ 4	♥ A K 7

♣ 7	♣ K Q 9 5
	♥ 9 2
	♦ K 10 3
	♣ J 9 6

Mr. Jacoby	Mr. Culbertson
♠ J 10	♠ K Q 9 5
♥ A 4	♥ 9 2
♦ 10 5 4 3	♦ K 10 3
♣ A Q 8 6	♣ K 10 5 7

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♠	INT (1) 2♥	2♥
2♠ (2)	Pass	Pass	3♠
Dbl (3)	Pass	3♠ (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A fine psychological bid to obscure the hand pattern to opponents.

2—Correctly helping partner and making the opposing bidding more difficult.

3—A very fine Double, which is probably an equally important factor in preventing opponents from reaching the proper contract.

4—Building an excellent structure upon a firmly laid foundation of psychology. Even casual study of the cards discloses that Mr. Lenz could have made four hearts without difficulty on the combined holdings of North and South. The only tricks he need lose would be one spade, one heart, and conceivably, although probably, one diamond. However, so effective had been the psychological barrage, beginning with West's one notrump and continuing with East's two spade bid and later Penalty Double of the club contract, that neither Mr. Lenz nor Mr. Jacoby felt justified in bidding for game.

TODAY'S POINTER

All successful bidding at Contract Bridge has as one basis a sound knowledge of psychology. However, many bids designated as "psychic" are simply bluffs or worse.

$40,000 DUE FROM VOCATIONAL FUND

$21,500 Goes for Salaries of Teachers and Directors in State

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—Wisconsin is scheduled to receive $40,798.02 during the current fiscal year from Federal vocational education funds, it was disclosed when the first deficiency appropriation bill for 1932 was reported to congress Monday.

Of this, $21,574.62 is being spent for salaries of teachers, supervisors, or directors of vocational agriculture and $19,223.40 for the teaching of home economics.

To provide the allotted funds to Wisconsin and the other states, however, the Federal Board of Vocational Education has had to ask for a deficiency appropriation of $33,000 for the current fiscal year. This is because congress did not appropriate the entire amount of the $1,500,000 authorized for vocational education throughout the country for the 1932 fiscal year, because a surplus of $100,000 was expected to be left over from the appropriation of the preceding year. The states spent more on vocational education than was expected, however, leaving a surplus of only $17,000 so that $83,000 is required to carry on the scheduled work for the present fiscal year, ending June 30, 1932.

For the 1933 fiscal year, Wisconsin is scheduled to have its appropriation for vocational education increased to $54,397.36 and in 1934 this will be again increased to $67,996.69.

STREET DEPARTMENT BUILDING

There should be no hesitancy on the part of the common council tomorrow evening to complete negotiations leading to the purchase of the so-called Seamless Steel Tube Co. building for the street department.

There can be no reasonable objection to the price, the financing plan enables the city to pay for the building over a period sufficiently long to obviate a heavy drain upon the public treasury, the location is good and the structure is adequate in size. In the long run the city probably will save a substantial sum over what it would cost to build the new buildings necessary to meet the needs satisfied by the Seamless Tube Co. structure.

The city for a long time has had under contemplation the erection of a building at the stock fair grounds to house street machinery and shops. Architects have estimated the cost of this building, considerably smaller than the tube company structure, at $25,000. The city also is faced with the necessity soon of providing another fire station in the western portion of the city, and is preparing to build, at a cost of about $15,000, near the intersection of W. College avenue and Story street.

The Seamless Tube Co. building is large enough to house all the street department equipment, machinery and shops and also will provide adequate quarters for a fire station besides leaving room for considerable growth.

Considerable progress toward alleviating parking congestion will result from removal of city buildings and machinery from the stock fair grounds. When buildings now on the property are cleared away there will be parking space for several hundred automobiles close to the shopping district.

Financing the purchase does not present a difficult problem. The council included an item of $10,000 for a street department building in its estimates of expenditures for this year and this amount is sufficient to make the first payment on the structure and to put it in shape for immediate use. The building, offered to the city for $40,000, is to be paid for in five years at the rate of $8,000 a year.

Altogether it is a businesslike and simple method of disposing of a problem that has been vexing the council for a number of years. The citizens of Appleton will be the ultimate losers if the purchase is not completed.

THE STATUTE OF WINCHESTER

So many world events of far-reaching importance have been taking place with such amazing rapidity within the past two decades that the effect of the British king's recent signature to the Statute of Winchester has received but passing notice. Yet this was an act of such profound significance to the future history of the British Empire as to warrant its consideration as epoch-making.

By this signature a long chapter in world history was brought to an end. The Dominions of the Empire as such ceased to exist and in their place were erected the Kingdoms of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Canada, New Foundland and the Irish Free State. No longer are these commonwealths woven into the parliamentary fabric of the British state. Each, like Great Britain, is now a free and independent nation with power to legislate as it likes, to make separate treaties with other states, or to make peace or war without any reference to London.

King George rules as before, but he rules over each separately and London is the capital only of Great Britain and the British colonies. The king alone within his person represents all that is left of the former Empire. Within him alone is embodied the imperial sentiment which all Britishers hope will keep in cohesive unity what now is nothing more than a group of nations associated together for mutual benefit and protection.

As to what this means for the future of the British Empire, only time can tell. History teaches that a division of empire quite naturally leads to complete and final separation. Charlemagne's great New Western Empire of the ninth century disintegrated within a generation into the kingdoms of Italy, France and Germany. Many similar instances could be cited.

The British Empire is now but a moral and sentimental union of nations. Its component monarchies may very easily and without hindrance gradually drift apart and go their own way as a result of economic changes or the growth of new ideals and aspirations.

ANOTHER BOOK!

Harry Daugherty early earned a name for a crafty and artful sort of slick and subtle smartness.

And now the former attorney-general with the malodorous reputation has written a book "The Inside Story of the Harding Tragedy." Coldly and cautiously like a stony-faced poker player with a royal flush, he has waited for all others to make their moves and unburden their minds. Mr. Daugherty has cross-examined too many witnesses not to know the incalculable value of being able to tell one's story last.

He writes: "The time approaches for a real valuation of Warren G. Harding, his administration and his associates. I predict that when the last literary scavenger has uttered his dying howl against Warren G. Harding, one of the knightliest, gentlest, truest men who ever lived in the White House will emerge from the din of slander and take his rightful place in the hearts of our people."

Cleverly again Mr. Daugherty is getting behind and seeking an ample fold of the cloak of that "knightliest, gentlest, truest" sort of a man, for, despite the strain of association with Daugherty and Fall, President Harding emerged from their corrupt machinations without personal reproach to himself. History has no evidence that Mr. Harding was other than too indulgent and trustful with his friends but history will have something stinging to say about those friends.

And yet as the people read Mr. Daugherty's tardy, detailed statement this vision must rise before them:

Mr. Daugherty is on trial in a New York courtroom. The charge is that he conspired while attorney-general of the United States, and for a consideration, to release certain enemy property of great value impounded during the war. The evidence flows in steadily as a stream follows its channel. Witnesses are even brought from Switzerland. They tell about parting with half a million dollars. Liberty bonds are followed by number. Strange, is it not, that funds from those liquidated-bonds should find their way to a bank in a little town in far-off Ohio of which Mr. Daugherty's brother was president? Stranger still that the Daugherty accounts in that bank have been torn out of the ledgers and destroyed. But despite the destruction of evidence the testimony presented was damning and overwhelming. Finally the government rested its case.

Now it is Daugherty's turn to explain. Astute lawyer himself, he was represented by other astute legal counsel. The time for which he must have been waiting has come at last. Surely he will fight, if necessary, to take the stand. With blazing eyes and outraged feelings he will expose the truth, confound his accusers, hurl the facts in the teeth of his detractors.

But that is more difficult than writing a book because the government will cross-examine and ask most embarrassing questions. Daugherty then considered the practice he often mentally turned over as an attorney: When you are defending a man who is so guilty that further discussion will only impress the guilt still deeper the best thing to do is arise and say, "Your honor, the defendant rests." That move is as old as any badger game and has worked as successfully.

And so the vision flashes on to an end. An attorney-general of the United States, one who had sat at the side of a president and helped direct the destinies of a great nation, with the proud and noble bearing to which the position entitled him, faced with a score of reporters at the press desk eagerly ready and anxiously willing to transmit his testimony to the country, permitted his attorney to arise, cough in an embarrassed manner, and close the case without putting the star witness on the stand.

The thing is impossible to square with innocence. It bears the clear-cut and undeniable stamp of guilt.

And with all the books that might be written by Harry Daugherty or others from now until doomsday, not one line of that story can be washed out, not a step retraced.

HO HUM and tak tak . . . here it is a beautiful Monday morning and us needing a shot in the arm or a kick in the trousers to get an inspiration . . . our New Year's resolution barred narcotics however . . . also did it bar solo dying in an airplane, biting circus lions, singing over the radio, outdoor swimming in January and running for president . . . it's nice to make resolutions like that because you always keep 'em . . .

Some guy has it all figured out that women are to blame for all our troubles today. Seize, wimmin have had voting power and control for the past dozen years in America and other countries and in that time they've dragged the nations straight to the bow wows.

They do say, of course, that the ladies are responsible for prohibition, but that they had to do with the world war, the stock market or the joyride before the depression is not quite clear. It was the Reds who did that. Tillie. Ask your congressman.

Any day now, you can expect to hear someone babble, "Is it cold enough for you?"

And any day now, you can expect to find a body, badly mangled, whose dying words were, "Is it cold enough for you?"

It's open season on 'em.

At least you can tell 'em, "No, it ain't HAFF cold enough."

Well, there's one consolation when a fellow is reading about the golf pros and their efforts in the various southern open matches this winter. He can always go out in the kitchen, swing his clubs and shoot probably the best score anybody ever shot. The perfect swings are always practice shots.

Yep, the depression is doing a lot of terrible things. It's cut down on the pretty calendars that used to be sent out and down in Chicago, last weekend, some robbers worked all night to get a safe open and when they finally succeeded, they found just four bucks to pay for all their work.

Which hardly speaks well for the people who owned the safe. They should at least be polite enough to borrow some money and leave it inside. What's a hard-working safe cracker to do for a living? If banks get the habit, the Wisconsin Bank Bandits Society will be filing a protest.

And maybe the legislature will pass a law protecting them, too.

Germany, ladies and gentlemen, is naming a city square in Berlin after George Washington whose 200th birthday comes next month. Which is nice. But, after driving through Milwaukee a couple of times, you'd think it were about time.

GOLD MINE

Said I to Bud: "Time was I knew A rather curious fellow, who Possessed a gold mine at his door, With knowledge that the glistening ore Was close at hand, yet day by day He went upon his sullen way And though rich nuggets caught his eye Indifferently he passed them by."

"Strange man, who knew that gold was there, Yet to possess it didn't care! An hour a day with pick and spade, A richer man of him had made, The idle win were plain to view, Their presence all his neighbors knew, Yet to the hour he came to die, Untouched he let that treasure lie."

"That's queer," said Bud. "Show gold to me And after it an once I'll be!" "All right," I answered, "Twixt ourselves, Just gaze upon the library shelves, Well stocked with books. Here you can find The product of some noble mind To serve your every time of need, All yours, if you'll take time to read!" (Copyright, 1932, Edgar A. Guest)

Looking Backward

TEN YEARS AGO
Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1922

Chicago was still gasping that day over the failure of the wedding of Miss Mary Landon Allister McCormick to materialize the previous day. After the wedding march had been played over several times, the minister arose and before the assemblage of people in the church stated that "owing to a sudden indisposition of Miss Baker, there will be no wedding."

The marriage of Miss Margaret Peeters, daughter of Mrs. Patrick Randerson, Little Chute, to Carl Fahlstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fahlstrom, Appleton, took place at 8 o'clock that morning at St. John church, Little Chute.

Miss Evelyn West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. West, Stevens Point, and Dr. H. L. Playman, Appleton, son of F. M. Playman, Stevens Point, were married at 1 o'clock the preceding Saturday at the home of the bride's parents.

The marriage of Miss Wilhelmina Hoks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Hoks, to Chester Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Smith, took place at 9 o'clock the previous Monday morning at St. Joseph church.

Application for marriage licenses had been made by Victor E. Anderson, Lincoln, Neb., and Rose May Brill, Appleton; Charles A. Roth and Anna M. Williamson, Appleton.

A marriage license had been issued at Antigo to Joseph F. Chadek, Antigo, and Florence A. Holler, Appleton.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Herman Erb was reelected president of the Appleton Cemetery association at the annual meeting the previous evening. H. D. Smith was again chosen vice president, and Frank W. Harman was reelected secretary and treasurer.

M. F. Barteau was that day appointed to the position of postmaster at Appleton for a period of four years.

Miss Mabel Getschow was at Chicago to spend several weeks as the guest of friends. Charles Schreier left the previous evening on a two weeks' business trip through the northern portion of Wisconsin and Minnesota.

VICTIM OF THROMBOANGITIS OBLITERANS GIVES UP CIGARETTES

A correspondent offers his experience:

"I should like to give my reader E. G. F. the benefit of my experience. I suffered with thromboangitis obliterans and was obliged to undergo amputation of one leg above the knee. Later the disease set in the other leg and there was a serious gangrenous condition of the toes. I was again in the hospital and the question of another amputation was seriously considered.

"At that stage I was recommended to Dr. _____ and I went under his care. He absolutely forbade me to smoke and emphatically stated that he would refuse to treat me unless I gave up smoking entirely. I had been a very heavy cigarette smoker and found it very hard to cut it out. So I cut down to just a few smokes a day, but the doctor still insisted that a few smokes were just as bad as forty a day and said he would retire from the case unless I promised to give up all use of tobacco. I finally gave it up entirely and after two weeks found it no hardship.

"The doctor began giving me injections of saline solution. As a result the gangrenous condition presently cleared up, and I have had no symptoms of the disease since that time, about two years ago.

"I am convinced that while smoking may not be dangerous to most people, there is a minority of people who are susceptible to thromboangitis obliterans and for these the habit of smoking brings on all the dreaded results of the dread disease, so that it is absolutely necessary for such persons to completely and suddenly give up the habit.

"I hope this recital of my experience may be of help to E. G. F. who asked for your advice.

"Very truly yours,
D. M. S."

From his surname I infer that D. M. S. is of Jewish origin. I think it was Dr. Wily Meyer of New York who observed that thromboangitis obliterans was almost exclusively limited to young Russian Jews who smoked cigarettes excessively. This was some twenty years ago and the observation applied to New York City.

Other physicians with large experience in dealing with this painful and disastrous malady have expressed the conviction that cigarette smoking is the main factor, tho they all agree there is some hereditary susceptibility concerned, as a contributing cause.

I doubt whether any good can be done by describing the earlier signs of the trouble here, further than to say that there are usually cramps or aching in the calves, with some bluish swelling of the feet or legs, often lightly ascribed to "rheumatism" or perhaps to "falling arches."

No matter whether you are male or female, young or old, Russian Jew or Shanty Irish, you are pretty certain to suffer some pathological consequence from excessive indulgence in tobacco, cigarettes, cigars, pipe, chewing or snuffing.

Why make a hog of yourself? Why become a slave to habit? Why spoil the pleasure you might enjoy for years and years without injury to health if you would just use reasonable self-control, moderation, temperance?

As D. M. S. says, there is a minority of people who are susceptible to thromboangitis. Likewise I believe a minority are susceptible to mouth or throat cancer, and a minority susceptible to pseudo-angina or real angina pectoris, and a minority susceptible to duodenal ulcer complex, and a minority susceptible to amblyopia (partial blindness). We'll leave arteriosclerosis out of the present discussion because we have insufficient evidence about that.

In another talk we'll discuss the pleasure and comfort tobacco gives the person who uses it temperately.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington — It is interesting to watch the shifting values in the leadership of the house as the congress moves steadily on with the democrats at the helm.

Almost every day brings to the surface a new figure on the democratic side of the chamber—a figure perhaps generally little known before or one who in the past has had little to do with house proceedings.

On the other hand, on the republican side voices raised loudly and frequently in other days now are being stifled.

The one-time majority has now become the minority.

Consider the case of William B. Bankhead of Alabama—referred to by the newspaper boys as Tallulah's papa—for example. He has been in congress for 14 years, faithful in attendance and regular in his utterances on the floor of the house.

Yet no one in the press gallery grabbed a pencil when he started to speak in the past. He was just another democrat—one of the minority.

It's Different Now

But the other day he rushed to the defense of his party when it was being attacked and before he finished he had howled 'em over—democrats and republicans alike. He accomplished in publicity in that speech perhaps more than he had in years.

One by one they stick their heads up every day.

Huddleston of Alabama made front pages all over the country when he spoke his piece about the Hoover administration. Formerly he perhaps considered himself lucky if he "got" the inside pages.

The short, wiry Rankin of Mississippi is another. They're even passing the word around in the press gallery now that "Rankin will speak at 2:30 this afternoon." And that's something usually done only for men like Borah.

Arnold of Illinois, Oliver of Alabama, Sumners of Texas and McKeown of Oklahoma are others who

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES
New York—The lean, carrot-haired Sinclair Lewis, in a brown suit and tan shirt, attended the otherwise high hat opening of the movie version of his novel "Arrowsmith." By him filed the elite of the show world and some swanky representatives of social and literary sets. The men were formally attired from toe to top; the ladies from toe to toe, nowhere near the top.

Individualistic fellow, this Lewis. But when the showing was over he shared, or pretended to share, a common enthusiasm. When some one blurted praise in his presence, he was heard to say distinctly, but with proper restraint, "Wasn't it grand?"

Lewis stood in the aisle beside his seat for quite awhile before the lights went off for the news reel conversing with persons sitting near and gazing about.

Of course the autograph hunters were out in full bloom. When the procession to the exits started, they swarmed about such personages as Raquel Torres, Helen Twelvetrees and Flo Ziegfeld.

Lewis stood nearby looking a little wistful, we thought.

Finally there came an autograph fiend who recognized him and presented his book for Lewis to sign. The author grinned and consented, doing as much for a couple of others who thrust programs into his hand.

But when the group about him began to thicken, Lewis held up his slender hands and good naturedly protested: "No more, please. I'm not going to sign any more tonight."

On The Cobb

Did you know that Irvin S. Cobb at 19 was reported to be the youngest managing editor in the United States?

His paper was the Paducah (Ky.) Daily News. The News took him on as a cub reporter at 16.

When Cobb got the big city fever he wrote a batch of letters to New York editors, describing his proportions as a journalist. He received five offers of jobs, which shows he must have been pretty good as an author, even then.

Trumpeter's Triumph

Audiences call for a solo from him whenever the Goldman artists make an appearance.

The red-haired Stalgers (so many red-haired boys made good was born in Muncie, Ind. At the town-hall stage he pulled the pickets off the backyard fence to follow hands down the street.

He begged his parents to buy him a cornet and finally, thinking it was merely a boyish whim, his mother told him he could rent one.

"I wanted a battered old cornet for 10 cents a week to see if I could make a noise," Stalgers says.

"It turned out to be the best series of tunes I ever spent."

A 17-year-old boy, out of work, spent two days in the basement of a big movie theatre here before the management found him.

He said he had panhandled enough coin to pay the price of admission, then slipped into the basement, after viewing the show. He slept on a couch in the costume room at night, hid in the daytime but emerged to eat two meals in the basement cafeteria for employees.

The boy got by with signing checks for the food, telling a cashier he worked for the house.

are getting a kick these days out of feeling that words they utter on the floor are not quickly forgotten.

Freshmen Speak Up

Even the freshmen democrats feel cocky enough to sound off now. Unless they were members of the majority doubtless they wouldn't dare open their mouths for months.

But since the democrats are in control "Freshman" Sweeney of Ohio feels that he can get up and tell everyone from President Hoover on down the line what he thinks of them. And he did just that the other day.

"The ladies of this house," said Sweeney, "behave like perfect gentlemen. A lot of the gentlemen of the house conduct themselves like a bunch of old women."

"It's going to take us a long time to undo what you republicans have done," he said, "but we face the task with a courageous heart."

Preocious utterances for a man to make on his fourth day in congress!

But then Sweeney is on the side that's in.

INSURANCE MEN LEAST AFFECTED BY DEPRESSION

Outstanding Feature of Business Is Stability
During Past Year

BY ROLLIN M. CLARK
Copyright, 1932, Cons. Press
Washington—(CPA)—The outstanding feature of the insurance business in 1931 has been its stability in the face of most trying conditions. Of unusual significance is the fact that there has not been a single failure of any large insurance company. The few that have occurred have been among relatively small concerns and have occasioned little or no loss to their policy holders and other claimants.

The most troublesome problem to insurance companies has been the decline in security values. In this respect the life companies find themselves in a different situation from that of the fire and casualty companies. The former invest chiefly in high grade bonds, first mortgage loans on farm and other property and policy loans, while the latter hold bonds, mortgages and large blocks of common stocks.

The life companies have made greater payments to their policyholders and their beneficiaries than in any previous year and have reached a record figure in the amount of policy loans outstanding. Despite this, however, it has not been necessary, except possibly in a few instances, to sell securities at a sacrifice in order to meet the demands for cash. Current income has generally proved sufficient for this purpose.

Amortized Basis
These companies are permitted to value their bonds on an amortized basis if simply secured and not in default as to principal or interest. By this means they are enabled to avoid the use of a sinking market value. There is ample justification for this because such holdings do not have to be liquidated.

The fire and casualty companies, on the other hand, have ordinarily been required to use actual market values at the end of each year in preparing their annual statements for submission to the various state insurance departments. Because of the unusual situation created by the decline in market quotations, the national convention of insurance commissioners has adopted a formula this year prescribing a "fair average market value." This action, however, was not unanimous and it is possible that several states will insist upon the use of Dec. 31 quotations, with some leeway in deserving individual cases.

Seek Securities
One problem that is likely to be encountered by insurance companies in the future is that of finding adequate sources for the investment of their assets, assuming that conditions in the financial world show no decided improvement. Life companies, for example, have always been heavy investors in farm mortgages and in railroad bonds, although in recent years the percentage of their assets in these investments was declined. If the outlook for these investment media does not seem attractive for the future, more funds must be placed in other forms of approved life insurance investments if a practical limit is reached in the amounts that can be safely invested in these other directions, such as government and public utility bonds and urban mortgages, some new type of investment would be sought.

A suggestion was made before a joint meeting of the American Economic association and the American Statistical association here this week that life insurance companies should be permitted to invest 15 per cent of their assets in diversified common stocks in order to provide them with ample sources of investment in the future. The attitude of the vast majority life insurance executives are against such a plan and in view of the fall of stock prices in the last two years, there is little likelihood of a change in their position at this time.

STATE CORN ACREAGE LARGER IN PAST YEAR

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin has harvested corn from a larger acreage than usual this year, but the total production has been much smaller, the federal-state crop reporting service said today.

"Yields have been low as a result of the dry, hot summer and total production is now placed at 58,240,000 bushels. This is a 14 per cent lower production in terms of grain than the crop of 1930 and is smaller than any crop since 1924. Practically three fourths of this year's crop is of merchantable quality. This is slightly lower than the figure for last year but is a larger proportion of merchantable quality corn than is usual for this state.

"Yield of corn for silage is estimated at close to six and one half tons per acre in Wisconsin this year which is somewhat lower than for 1930 and more than 10 per cent below the last five year average.

"For the United States the total production of corn in 1931 is now placed at 2,556,363,000 bushels which is a result of an average yield of 24.4 bushels per acre from 104,970,000 acres, an increase of four per cent over the acreage of 1930. This

PERMIT ICE FISHING IN ALL COUNTY WATERS

Ice fishing is permitted in all waters in Outagamie, Calumet, and Winnebago counties, according to the state conservation commission. The only restrictions are that streams and creeks which might contain trout are closed, and that only such as specified by law can be taken from the waters.

In Brown-co ice fishing is prohibited in all waters from Jan. 1 to April 30. In Waupaca-co ice fishing is prohibited in White Lake, town of Royallton; Chain of Lakes, town of Dayton and Farmington at all times, but is permitted in all other waters of the county.

DIRECTORS MEETING

Fiscal Year

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Temporary quarters for several Wisconsin post offices during remodeling of old buildings or construction of new ones will cost Uncle Sam $34,436 during the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30, it was revealed when the first deficiency appropriation bill was reported to the House of Representatives Monday.

Leases for temporary post office quarters in Wisconsin are now in effect at Racine, $4,500, at Beloit, $10,136; and at Milwaukee, $3,000. The estimated cost of the lease for temporary quarters at La Crosse, now before the Post Office and Treasury departments for decision, is $16,800, according to statistics contained in hearings on the deficiency bill. It will go in to effect during the first three months of the calendar year 1932.

Contracts have been awarded to outside architects for drawing plans for three Wisconsin public buildings projects, the post offices at Monroe, Two Rivers and Sheboygan. The fees of architects, not connected with the office of the supervising architect of the treasury, are based on 4.8 per cent of the cost of the building. The estimated fees for the three Wisconsin projects are $2,800 to Joseph A. Parks for his designs and drawings for the $55,000 post office at Monroe; $4,176 to George Schley and Sons for the plans for the $130,000 Two Rivers post office; and $9,360 to E. A. Stubenrauch for his plans for the $295,000 Sheboygan post office.

Whenever press of work in the treasury and desire to speed up the building program necessitates the employment of outside architects, the treasury endeavors to select local men. The total estimated fees for all outside architects under contract on Dec. 19, 1931, for projects throughout the country, equal $10,754,963.

Film Actresses Say They'll Propose During Leap Year

BY JESSIE HENDERSON

Copyright, 1932, By Cons. Press
Hollywood—(CPA)—Together with everything else, here it is Leap Year again and some of the film actresses say they'll propose to a man if they like. And some of the men stars howl, "Don't!" while others declare it's O. K. by them.

Marguerite Churchill, 21 years old on Christmas day and considered among the prettiest girls in Hollywood, says she got a lot of ideas on women's rights by doing some pioneer films in which a covered wagon kept the home together while Indians yodeled outside. "Certainly I'd propose to a man if I wanted to," Miss Churchill remarked firmly today, "Leap year or no Leap Year."

"I've never proposed yet but I can easily imagine myself doing it of course the kind of man to whom I'd be attached would be one with a sense of humor, so if I asked him to be mine he wouldn't faint or act horrified. If he did I'd know he hadn't a sense of humor and that would immediately be that."

"As a matter of fact, the man without a sense of humor would never accept a girl's proposal and so, however her prospect answered, she would be in luck. Nothing could be worse than a husband without a sense of humor."

Roland Young doesn't see why women shouldn't propose. "Sure! Why not?" he inquired. "I've never had the experience but I'm sure I shouldn't mind."

Two Proposals

Russell Gleason admits that he's already had two proposals from girls not in leap year, either, and he's still rather surprised that they should have picked him out. "In both instances I said the same thing," he added, "that I'm not ready to get married and that I'd probably make a rotten husband, anyway. But I don't think the majority of modern fellows are shocked at the idea of a girl proposing. If I were in love with a girl and she got around to proposing before I did, Okay. But I hope I'd talk faster than the lady."

Ken Maynard says he will do his own proposing, leap year or any other year but Lew Cody is on the fence. "I'll have to wait until it happens to me," said Cody, "and then I'll tell you whether I approve of it or not."

The Blondes and Curves Have It!

Yes, sir, the blonds have it in 1932, according to no less an authority than Florence Ziegfeld, who has quite an eye for beauty. Ziegfeld says that the model American girl this year must be blond, and here you see two of the kind that gentlemen prefer, Jean Harlow, left, movie heart-throbber and Marilyn Miller, famous both in the Pollies and in the cinema. But being blond isn't quite enough, says the beauty expert. The ideal girl must be exactly 5 feet 6 inches tall, weigh 118 pounds and cut a much fuller curve than last year.

Don't Use Threats To Scare Child

BY ANGELO PATRI I know no way of destroying fears and so lifting a tremendous weight off children's souls. I believe that they are born with certain fears, the behaviorists to the contrary. I believe that some fears are beneficial. It is wise to teach a child to fear evil and cherish good. Self preservation is demanded of us in every day living and certain protecting fears are essential to that end.

These seemingly necessary fears are bad enough. They are about all we can stagger under so it is most unkind as well as unwise to cultivate fears or to allow a child to cultivate them, if we can avoid doing so.

Some children are so afraid of being hurt that they make it nearly impossible to help them when they stand in need of help. Usually we find such children have been badly managed and have had experiences that have made them fearful. Somebody has held them tightly and performed some "necessary" operation like cleaning his nose and throat with a swab, trimming a nail that was heading the wrong way; some slight attention has been rendered with more good will than good management. Now when a nurse or a doctor approaches him he stiffens up and begins to scream. Fast, experienced have registered so great a fear in these children that it is well nigh impossible to give them first aid treatment.

The dentist suffers at the hands and feet, of such children. Perhaps the little ones have heard the tales, the groans, the anguished recitals of those who have had their teeth fixed. Then he is called upon to sit in the dentist's chair and undergo what he believes to be a harrowing experience. Small wonder he fights and kicks and screams himself to freedom. His fears have been built up into a bulwark that defends him against help.

Now and again we have a bad time with a little child who has come to school for the first time. He shrinks from the teacher and goes into spasms of fear when the principal appears. In vain we try to tell him that we are his friends, that we like him. In vain we show him the pretty pictures and the gay balls. He cannot hear us, he cannot see us. Fear has closed his mind and he fights for his life against those who would do him nothing but good. Some unthinking person has threatened him with school and those about it. "Just" wait, young man. The teacher will fix you. She'll settle you when she gets a hold of you."

We find little children beset by so many unnecessary, hampering fears that it is a wonder they ever get the better of them. They are afraid of the policeman, the teacher, the doctor, the nurse, anybody whose duty it is to help them and from whom they must have help.

The way out is clear. Before you threaten a child with any person, place or thing, think what effect it is going to have on him when he meets that person, place or thing. Avoid telling of your own sufferings in his presence. The sooner you forget them the better for you and everybody else. Handle him gently when you have to help him and maintain an attitude of professional calm in the face of his tears. Your courage, your spirit, you as he sees you, feels you, knows you, set the pattern for his conduct, his courage or his fear.

Repeat every hour or so if needed. This will prevent many colds by stopping them before they get beyond the nose and throat—where most colds start.

2.—After a Cold Starts At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. If the air-passages are badly clogged with mucus, melt some VapoRub in a bowl of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drop—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing" which so often upsets digestion—especially of children.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

AL Pritchard hesitated a second before he answered Ruth's questions as to where he had met her sister. At least it seemed to Sue that he did.

When he spoke he seemed to hunt for his words. "I knew her... when she was in school. Is she still at home?"

"Very seldom," Ruth answered. "She's very popular."

"I can guess as much," Pritchard nodded. "She always was popular. But it is strange she never mentioned you. Just an older sister who apparently didn't."

"Apparently didn't take with men?" Ruth prompted. "You needn't be afraid to tell me anything Sally told you."

"Good. I thought you were that way, too," He leaned a little closer. "This older sister... what's her name...?"

"Call her Jane," Ruth prompted. "All right. Jane wanted to be a trained nurse. She knew she wasn't pretty enough to vie with Sally so she thought maybe she could put a cooling hand on a fevered brow even if she couldn't make a well man get up any temperature."

"Exactly," Ruth nodded. "But I can't understand why Sally left you out. You would put this Jane person to flight, too. Don't you and Sally hit it off well together?"

"Not especially," Ruth answered. "Have you seen Sally lately?"

"Oh, not for some time." Something in the man's tone caught Sue's suspicion. She noticed that Jack didn't look up at her slowly ate his ice. Jack did that when he was thinking, Sue knew.

"I like the way Sally wears her hair," Pritchard talked on. "That low way of catching it on her neck. But you are better this way."

Sue saw Ruth's eyes grow a little narrower. Ruth had made that remark just the other day. Sue remembered that Sally had been wearing her hair that way for only a very few weeks. It had been loose before that. A bob growing out.

"What are you doing this evening?" Jack asked suddenly. "Oh, I'm meeting a friend of mine a little later. Not for a couple of hours, though. He's just passing through town. I'm free now. I had thought of driving out to call on the senior partner of your firm. He suggested that I drop in and sign the last papers, if I had time."

"Well drive you out," Jack said. "Are you free, Ruth?"

"Yes," she smiled. Jack's lips twitched as he glanced at Sue, and back at Ruth again. He knew, too, that she was playing a part.

The road that they had to take passed Harry Becker's house. Sue hoped that Jack wouldn't notice cars around and light shining prodigiously. She knew he would be hurt that he had been left out, although he would understand that it wasn't Harry's fault.

But as the car swung along she saw the lighted house ahead and knew that he did, too. Another car, making a turn into the drive, brought Jack to a sudden stop. The other car stopped, too. Sue turned her head. She saw Sally Bradley looking out of the other car with an amazed expression on her face.

RESOLVE TO SET TIME FOR BEAUTY AIDS

BY ALICIA HART

Any time is a good time to make beauty resolutions. The New Year is an especially appropriate time. You might keep them!

It is not enough merely to say, "I will be as beautiful as possible in 1932." You might hypnotize yourself into thinking you were, without doing a thing to make yourself that way.

You should be practical about New Year's beauty resolutions. Say out loud just how much time you intend devoting to your daily beauty rituals. Figure out how much you can spend. Decide whether you prefer to have your hair treated or whether you should get a facial, if you are short-changed by Fate, this new year, if you can afford both weekly, and a manicure thrown in, so much the better.

To get yourself into a beauty routine, your New Year's resolutions should consider not only your face, your hair, your nails, but your general appearance, which means your figure. Specifically, whether you are thin enough and little enough. It is not sufficient just to be thin today. Being little is really more important.

Suppose you allow yourself a half hour daily for beauty. Nights might take 20 minutes and mornings 10. If you have money enough to get treatments, these are in addition to your own routine, of course.

The 20 minutes at night should include a facial, with cleansing, a little patting, more massage for under the chin, a few strokes around the eyes with muscle oil and at least 50 strokes of your hair with a good stiff-bristled brush. Also push back your cuticle with a bit of good, thick oil or cream.

After you have learned to do all this with no waste motion, you will find it is easily included in 20 minutes devotion to the goddess of beauty. You may learn to speed up enough to get at least five minutes for exercises. These are all important.

The 10 minutes in the morning should be practically all exercises. If you have done a thorough job the night before, your nails, hair and face will be just about ready to show the world after a cold shower, a bit of cream slapped on and some astringent.

ORDER REDUCTION IN LIGHT, POWER RATES

Madison—(AP)—The Public Service commission Monday ordered the Reedsburg municipal utility to reduce its electric light and power rates to the basis of a fair thereby cutting the revenues of the city about $5,000 a year.

The order was in conformity with the policy stated by the commission last summer when it advised municipal utilities that excess revenues to be used in other department of government would not be permitted. The commission found that the Reedsburg plant earned $7,500 more than a fair return last year.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES SET ASIDE BY COURT

Washington—(AP)—Reduced freight rates on grain which went into effect last August were set aside Monday by the supreme court.

The court, with Chief Justice Hughes delivering the opinion, took the position the commission should have reheard the case at the request of the railroads.

The carriers, which recently asked for a blanket freight rate increase, argued that economic conditions had changed since the commission made its order in September, 1928.

The chief justice reviewed this change and said it had taken place in economic circles generally.

FIVE YEARS' FRIENDSHIP BUT NO MATRIMONIAL INTENTIONS — YOUNG WIFE'S FORGIVENESS

Dear Virginia Vane: For five years I have been going with a man ten years older than myself. I love him dearly and he has always given me to understand that he loves me. He never goes with anyone else. I know he makes a good salary and I make good money too. But he has never once asked me to marry him. It is not up to me to broach the subject but finally I let up to it and he said he could not marry because of financial conditions. That is not the truth, I know. Well about eight months ago I got so disgusted that I told him we must break off and I told him that he must understand why. Since then I have gone out with other men and have seen him only occasionally. He still says he loves me but not one word of marriage. I don't mind how poor I am but I do want to get married sometime and I have wasted five years on him. Wouldn't you think he would say something about matrimony if he really loved me, as he still assures me he does? Should I go on seeing him?

MARION L.

There's only one possible excuse for him—and that is purely imagination on my part. Possibly he has less money than you think—and seeing you well cared for, earning good money, he feels he cannot ask you to marry him and get along on what he makes. On that account he might maintain this obstinate silence—but otherwise there isn't much to be said for this hero of yours.

You aren't gaining a thing by seeing him. He's learning to take you and the present situation more and more for granted. He can still see you when he wants to and evidently his ardor is not so great that he dislikes seeing you with other men.

Perhaps it makes him happy to have you as a rather sentimental friend—but that isn't helping you much. It makes you definitely unhappy to see him to be reminded of your love for him—and to feel that year after year is passing by with your chances of marriage farther away than ever. If you definitely gave him up, you'd be on the way to a new peace of mind, even though the initial steps of the separation would be painful. Give yourself a chance.

If he is merely being stupid and blind, nothing will cure him quite so fast as knowing that he can't see you at all any more. Don't make a fuss about the break-up if you can avoid it. Tell him that you intend to get married some day and that his constant devotion makes it difficult to meet new friends—that people have go in the habit of coupling your two names together, etc. It's a touchy subject for any young woman but I honestly think that after the man has protested his love for you for five years, you have a right to expect more than an eternal friendship. Since marriage is your object, and no friendship, you'd undoubtedly be happier if you got rid of a suitor who obviously doesn't want to be a husband.

YOUNG WIFE: I should think your bad-tempered husband was sufficiently ashamed of himself over the recent episode, not to want to mention it any more. Give him one more chance, certainly. No need to go on with silent warfare because he lost control of himself once. Maybe that taught him a lesson, too—and perhaps your best cue is to forget the incident if you can.

Of course if it happens again, you will have to make a speech about it.

and say a few disagreeable things which will convince him that you won't stand for that kind of treatment. But why not forgive this one incident, and hope that nothing of the sort will occur again? I don't really believe it will, if you show a really sweet spirit of kindness and forgiveness.

Forget Gifts and Girl
K. F. S.: If the lady doesn't wish to return your gifts, it isn't honestly your place to ask for them. It would only make more trouble if you did this. Better forget the gifts—and the girl too, unless she makes some move to see you again. You see she's in the wrong, and nothing you can do will win her back unless she realizes her own blame in the matter, and takes steps herself. Otherwise you'll only humiliate yourself and annoy her by trying to effect a conciliation. This is a case where you must stand on your dignity and wait for her to make amends.

A Cold

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in aspirin.

MARRIAGE LICENSE BUSINESS DECLINES

Neenah—Records at the county clerk's office show that since 1927 fewer marriage licenses have been granted each succeeding year, with the year just ended having the smallest total of the five year period.

There were only 427 marriage licenses granted by the county clerk last year or a decrease of more than 25 per cent from the high total of 573 record of 1927.

The 1928 total, although that was leap year, was 543, or 30 less than the year before. In 1929, there was a decrease of only two from the figure of the year before, the total being 541, but in 1930, there were 492 permits to wed given, a decrease of 49.

Marriage licenses given during each of the months in 1931 totaled: January, 20; February, 20; March, 19; April, 40; May, 45; June, 60; July, 24; August, 50; September, 41; October, 48; November, 24, and December, 25.

PICK DELEGATES TO LEGION GATHERING

Jack Meyer, Dan Nielsen Going to Conference at Madison

Neenah—James P. Hawley post, American Legion, held its first meeting of the new year Monday evening at its quarters in the city hall. Dan Nielsen, commander, and Jack Meyer, adjutant, were authorized to attend the midwinter conference early next week at Madison.

The committee on unemployed reported that insofar as ex-service men are concerned, there are scarcely any veterans out of jobs. There is one disabled veteran seeking part time work. It was decided to ask the Legion auxiliary to assist in an old clothes campaign, the clothing to be used as much as possible among needy ex-service men and their families. Anything left over after all ex-service families are cared for will be turned over to the city poor committee and the Red Cross.

The committee to which was referred the proposal to join with the Knights of Pythias lodge in sharing its club house on Church st., recommended that no action be taken.

Local veterans were advised to take better advantage of the law pertaining to the county soldiers' relief measure. Carl Loehning, secretary of the relief commission, explained the regulations of the law and how this relief can be obtained. Application blanks will be received by Charles Korvick within the next few days. It is pointed out that a veteran not necessarily has to be disabled or sick to receive this aid, but may be hard pressed for a short time and receive this relief to tide him over.

BANKS REVEAL HIGH DEGREE OF LIQUIDITY

Average Amount of Cash and Government Securities to Deposits Is Half

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE

Wall Street, New York.—(CPA)—The statements by banks and trust companies of their condition at the end of 1931, now being published, fulfill the expectations of the public that these would show a high degree of liquidity among banking institutions. The average amount of cash and government securities to deposits at the year-end was approximately 50 per cent, ranging from 35 per cent to 70 per cent with the different banks.

The exhibits suggest the process of liquidation and of exchanging less desirable for a more marketable securities that went on during the greater part of December. The statements indicate a larger total of cash than of government securities. There are exceptions to this rule, however. One New York trust company shows holdings of over $200,000,000 in government bonds and treasury certificates compared with $163,409,000 of cash on hand and due from banks. Its ratio of these two items to deposits is 60 per cent.

The total government holdings of 13 banks and trust companies reporting amounts to $770,000,000 but does not include the three largest New York institutions.

Same Ratio Elsewhere
About the same ratios of liquid assets are observed in the banks of Philadelphia and Chicago as those indicated in the statements of the New York companies. One New York institution with a 50 per cent proportion of cash and government securities to deposits also has call loans and loans eligible for rediscount at the federal reserve bank and loans due on demand of within 30 days, aggregating $169,000,000. Its combined items of what might be called "quick assets" amount to nearly 90 per cent of its total deposits.

To satisfy the public interest in the amount of foreign credits held by banks and figuring as "slow assets," one New York institution found it advisable to state that the total amount of its short term foreign credits, subject to the so-called "quick agreements," is less than $300,000.

The recent ruling of the comptroller of the currency permitted banks to carry their securities as of Dec. 31 on the basis of intrinsic values instead of those adjusted to market values. In spite of this, some institutions have written down their securities to current valuations. One New York trust company lists its holdings of stock and bond investments today at actual market prices.

Make Charge-offs
Other institutions made charge-offs from their undivided profits account against losses in securities and in commercial loans and advances. Following this course, has written down $1 an investment which cost it $15,000,000.

Due to the decrease in their earning assets last year and in the low rates of interest, returns on bank stocks are the smallest in several years but in a majority of cases they are sufficient to enable the banks to pay dividends. The First National bank of New York, of which the late George F. Baker was president, showed earnings of about $75 a share on its capital stock.

Practically all of the banks indicate a loss in deposits during the past year and in the last quarter of 1931. The reporting members in the federal reserve system during December showed a reduction in deposits of $3,000,000,000 compared with the same period in 1930. At the same time, their total loans and investments indicated a 12 months contraction of $2,500,000,000. These ratios of loss in a cross section of the banking system of the country apply quite generally to the so-called "non-member" banks.

Position Strengthened
The January reviews of the federal reserve bank of New York issued Monday describes the loss in deposits of banks in recent months and the relation of this to the decline in the bond market. It states that "individual banks sold bonds or reduced their loans in order to strengthen their position. The result, however, was a further decline in the market value of investment securities and a loss of deposits by other banks, so that those banks also considered it necessary to strengthen their position by selling securities or reducing their loans."

This action, in turn, while strengthening for the time being the position of individual banks, merely passed the burden along to other banks and tended to perpetuate and make progressively larger the losses of deposits and the decline in market value of bank assets for the banking system as a whole.

This is a vivid picture of the working of the vicious circle whose sequel was the most demoralized bond market during November and December in American financial history.

YOU BE THE JUDGE OF THIS JUSTICE

Fort Worth, Tex.—Federal Judge James C. Wilson won a lot of friends over a decision he made in the case of E. B. Allen, 65-year-old farmer up for violating prohibition laws. Allen, an old man with gray hair stringing from below his battered hat, deserved the acquittal verdict Judge Wilson returned after hearing the old man's hard luck story.

After three years of failures, Allen took to selling a little whiskey and beer on his farm. He was nearly penniless. To add to that, his home burned down. But the home could have been spared, Allen told the judge, if the fire had not taken to their deaths his two young grandchildren.

Allen also explained that he had been forced to hitch-hike to Fort Worth in order to be in the trial. He was given a six-month sentence and $500 fine, both of which were suspended.

Clintonville Man Gets Patent On New Trailer

Special to Post-Crescent

Clintonville—August F. Kuester of this city has been granted a patent on his recent invention of a low bed auto trailer. This product is now being manufactured by the Moleck Foundry and Machine company of Kaukauna, under the name of "Altastra Trailer."

Mr. Kuester, who has been a Clintonville resident practically all of his life, has for many years handled various kinds of heavy machinery. The need of a piece of equipment like the Altastra Trailer was often evidenced in his work and he definitely had in mind making this trailer for several years. About a year ago he built the first trailer in this city and the second one sold before completion.

This trailer differs from others because of the low bed construction and being built without an axle with novel spring construction and patented lifting features. It has met with favor with utility companies and contractors having heavy hauling.

Mr. Kuester applied for his patent about a year ago and owing to its merit, it was given special attention at the request of interested parties. There are several other patents pending which the inventor expects favorable action in the near future. The U. S. patent was granted Sept. 8, 1931, and on June 2, 1931, a patent was granted in Canada.

Another Clintonville resident recently granted a patent is Frank Hinkel who resides on Brix-st. His invention is a portable clothes line post.

ALFRED HUGENBERG ONE OF PUZZLES IN GERMAN POLITICS

"Stonewall" Comes to Front Despite Defeats of Past

BY J. A. BOUMANN

Berlin.—(AP)—Alfred Hugenberg, "Stonewall Hugenberg" to his admirers, is one of the puzzles of present day German politics.

Relegated to the background when the election in September, 1930, reduced his die-hard nationalist representation in the reichstag from 72 to 41, he has been again in the forefront in the last few weeks.

At the recent rally of Nazis and steel helmets at Bad Harzburg, he was right up in the spotlight with Adolf Hitler.

There were some there who saw in Hugenberg the future titular head of Germany if the Hitlerites ever succeeded in establishing their dictatorship.

Hugenberg earned the "stonewall" sobriquet by his stiff-necked attitude on whatever he conceives to be the right course. He is an organizer of unusual parts, having demonstrated that before he changed his seat on the board of the Krupp works at Essen for a place in the reichstag.

On the platform he is bristling in both speech and appearance. His right, white pompadour and stiff mustache adding to the effect. His short, crisp sentences are flung out in the voice of a drill sergeant.

Much was expected of his leadership of the German nationalist party when he took office in 1928. He controlled newspapers, advertising and film agencies, which carried his name into all corners of the Reich. But personal magnetism was lacking.

His nationalism is uncompromising. He was an outspoken nationalist in world war days and advocated fighting to the bitter end in 1918. He opposed the Versailles treaty, the Dawes plan, the Young plan and every other measure which, in his view, was framed to "enslave the German people."

Hugenberg's reduced following following the 107 Hitlerites who marched out of the reichstag last February and again this fall. Nationalists and fascists are one in their desire to overthrow the Brüning government and destroy social democracy. They differ only as to ways and means.

Kaukauna—Although no definite date can be set for the opening of the new Lawe-st bridge here, the bridge probably will be opened Jan. 16, according to the committee appointed to arrange a dedicatory ceremony with the opening. This committee was appointed by Mayor E. W. Fargo, and includes representatives of various organizations here. William Carnot is chairman. The bridge is nearly completed with all of the concrete and steel work finished. Remaining work is on the draws, where workers are ready are placing plank. The bridge lighting fixtures were lighted for the first time Monday evening for convenience of pedestrians, who have been allowed to cross for several days.

Farm Best Place To Raise Children, Housewife Holds

BY W. F. WINSEY

Black Creek—This world is a wonderful place to live in if one makes the best of the opportunities it offers and the farm is the best place to rear children according to Mrs. Arthur Piechocki, route 4. Mrs. Piechocki formerly lived in cities. Now living on a farm, she is bringing up a large family.

For several years and up to 1919, Mr. Piechocki worked at the cabinet trade in Appleton. Then he bought his farm largely with borrowed money and there, determined to learn the tricks of farming and to pay for his farm. He now owns 160 acres in the town of Maine and with the aid of two sons is working a total of 380 acres.

Last fall he filled one silo, 12 by 30 feet, and another 13 by 40 feet, to the three-quarters mark with his crop of corn.

Reading stories in the Post-Crescent of farmers in the town of Bovina raising soybeans for hay and sweet clover for pasture and green manure for corn and cabbage, Mr. Piechocki raised five acres of soybeans last summer. He seeded the field with a corn planter with the rows 18 inches apart. Despite the drought the beans did quite well. He is feeding the hay now to his herd of 30 head and has a high opinion of soybeans as a dairy feed. He expects to plant 10 acres of soybeans next spring. Three days after he has the soybeans in the ground he hauled the hay to his barn.

He said, however, that his grain crop last year was not up to the usual yearly average. He had enough pasture for his cattle.

He raised 21 tons of early cabbage and 15 tons of late cabbage. He disposed of his early cabbage in the market and his boys are packing the late crop in Appleton, Kaukauna, Neenah and Menasha.

The success of Mrs. Piechocki in the education of her children is shown by the fact that Frieda, 15 years of age graduated from Appleton high school and later from the Outagamie Training school; Hilma, 16, is attending Chisholm high school; Elsie, 12, Herbert 11 and Freddie 8, are attending the Maple Lawn district school. Elsie is interested in drawing and painting, and Herbert and Freddie are studying to become modern farmers. There are two more children, Thelma 6, and Marian 3.

SOUTH TURNING TO BADGER POTATOES

Wisconsin Product Gains in Popularity Down to Rio Grande Valley

Madison—Wisconsin seed potatoes will be followed to the Rio Grande valley and other sections in the south this year by an inspector from that state department of agriculture and markets according to Wilbert L. Witte, chief of the division of markets.

Seed potatoes from Wisconsin have gained greatly in popularity in the south, and in order to check their growth and productivity in the southern states, the inspector from that state department of agriculture and markets, Inspector Smith, J. Williams is being sent to make a direct contract with southern growers for the benefit of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Exchange Cooperative and all Wisconsin certified seed potato growers. Mr. Williams has been an inspector in the department for ten years, during which time he has also assisted in the field certification of seed potatoes.

Originally, Mr. Williams says, Wisconsin dominated the southern seed potato market, but mosaic infection threatened to ruin the entire trade. Through tuber indexing, certified seed is being produced and the Wisconsin Triumphs sent out for seed are required to be practically disease free. The average annual shipment of seed potatoes have been approximately 500 carloads, but this year the dry season has cut the shipments to about 250 carloads. Of this amount, 31 carloads were shipped by the Wisconsin Potato Growers Exchange Cooperative. Mr. Williams says.

The seed potatoes go out under trade name of Badger State Brand Certified Seed Potatoes, and it is required by law that seed be certified by the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets and the Wisconsin Experiment Station.

HENS LAYING MORE EGGS THIS YEAR

12 Per Cent Increase Per Hundred Birds Reported on Badger Farms

Madison—Hens and pullets of laying age on Wisconsin farms have been laying 12 per cent more eggs per 100 birds than at the same time last year, according to reports on December 1 to the federal-state crop reporting service. The number of chickens on farms shows a decline as compared to this time last year but with the increase in rate of egg laying there has been some gain in total egg production for the state as indicated by December first reports.

For the United States the number of eggs laid per hen has been considerably greater this year than last. The number of eggs laid per hen on December 1 is exceptionally large for this time of the year, being 17 eggs per 100 hens and pullets of laying age, or 12 per cent greater than in 1930 and about a third greater than the average December 1 layings for the years 1925 to 1929.

The total production of eggs shows a more moderate increase this year, however, owing to the reduced total number of layers. As a result of a smaller number of layers the total of eggs laid for the twelve reportings from January 1 to December 1 shows only a slight increase over the same period of last year. Fewer pullets are being

RESUME DRILLING SOON ON M. WARNER FARM

BY W. F. WINSEY

Black Creek—Drilling operations conducted on the farm of Matt Warner, east of Depreys Corners by the Outagamie Gas and Oil Company, but temporarily discontinued about a month ago, will be resumed in a few days, according to the president of the company, John Deprey.

The reason for the interruption in drilling was that at a depth of 300 feet the drill opened a pocket of natural gas and caused an eruption that filled the well with hardpan and gravel, almost smothered the workmen, and looked the drill and a piece of pipe about two feet long in the wall. The tools have been recovered and the workmen expect to remove the pipe obstruction within a few days. The obstructing piece of pipe is 180 feet below the surface.

While the drillers have tapped a number of natural gas pockets, they have discovered no oil thus far in the present location.

FARMER BELIEVES IN SOYBEAN CROP

John Jarcow to Continue to Raise Crop for Home Consumption

BY W. F. WINSEY

Black Creek—A field of soybeans will be raised by John Jarcow, town of Maine farmer, next summer. He has operated his farm the past nine years and has never failed to raise good crops of corn and hay. He believes that good cultivation and management will make any farm in his township pay.

Last summer Jarcow raised a bumper crop of corn on a 10 acre field. With the crop he filled his silo, 12 by 24 feet, and could have filled another almost as large with the surplus corn.

SUNSET PASS

by Zane Grey

SYNOPSIS: Trueman Rock tells Thiry Preston he is not making love to her, but he intends to stay at Sunset Pass and look out for her. Danger looms for them both. Ash Preston, Thiry's brother, is antagonistic to Rock. Her father Gage, for whom Rock works, is suspected of cattle rustling.

Chapter 24

"TELLIN' you a simple fact, I'm not likely to annoy you with it soon again.

"But I sort of welcome this chance to prove somethin' to myself. You'll hear gossip about me and my love affairs, which you can believe if you like. But I know now I never had a real love before. 'T suits me to stake what I think I've become against the old Trueman Rock. This needn't worry you one little bit."

"You speak in riddles," she replied incredulously. "How can I help but worry—now, more than ever?"

"I shall leave you blissfully alone. I shall hardly be even polite if I see you at meal-time. Your brother Ash will soon see that there's one rider who isn't mushy over you."

"To what end?" she went on, sharply. "Is that to deceive Ash, so you can stay here?"

"Partly. But I'm bound to confess that it's to spare you."

"Oh, you're not going to spare me," she cried. "You'll not leave me alone. And even if you did Ash would believe it only in blime—that you were with me during his absence."

"But sure Ash couldn't believe you a liar?" queried Rock.

"He'd make more of your avoiding me than if you were just friendly. It's a poor plan. Please give it up."

"No."

She began to twist her hands in her white gown. The agitation which before he had marked, was possessing her again. The idea that he had decided to stay at Sunset Pass held some singular dread for her. Was it as much because of a possible fight between him and Ash as for some other reason? Rock concluded it was both. And while he weighed this in mind he watched her with penetrating gaze, stealing his heart against the tenderness that threatened to overwhelm him.

"If you really care for me—you will listen."

"Care for you?" he returned, scornfully. "You wait and see, Thiry Preston."

"Wait for what?" she demanded, almost piteously.

"Why, I reckon for a little time."

With evident strong effort she controlled some almost irresistible fear or conflict. Her glance changed to one of deep and unfathomable mystery. She had discovered a latent strength. Rock divined she had been driven to this extremity. And he grew sickeningly sure that she was involved somehow with Ash and her father in something which would not bear the light of day.

"Trueman Rock, I want you to leave Sunset Pass," she said, leaning to him.

"So you've told me about a thousand times."

"Let's risk being discovered meeting at Wagontongue," she went on, and it seemed a certainty she was thrilled by her own deceit. "You can get work anywhere. We'll take Mr. Winters into our confidence. We can meet in his store and spend an hour or two in his office. Then I'll arrange to stay with Mrs. Winter all night. You can meet me there, too. I will go to Wagontongue every week."

"Why would you be willing to do this unusual thing?" asked Rock, eager to lead her on and on. "I think I asked you that before."

"Didn't you say you—wanted to be friends with me?"

"It's sure that."

"It's your only chance. And I'm giving you that to get you to persuade you to leave here."

"Thiry, I ask you again—why do you want me to leave?"

"To keep you and Ash apart."

"Is that the only reason?"

"It's the—the big one," she replied, with both voice and glance unsteady. She was not an adept at lying, even in an issue of tremendous importance.

"But that won't keep Ash and me apart. He will come to town when you do. He'll watch you."

"I'll choose the time when he is away from town."

"When he's away—where?"

"Why, on the range. Dad has large orders. The driving and—the work will take up half his time from now on."

"What a child she was, thought Rock! He ruthlessly laid traps for her, but the sole reason was not only to lead her into betrayal. "You would risk so much for me?"

"It's not for you, though I know I will like you. If you, if you let me. It's for Ash and Dad—all of us."

"It's very sweet of you, Thiry," he said, with just enough satire to belie the portent of his words, "but very little to risk my life for."

"No, Trueman, it may save your life."

"You call me Trueman?" he asked, amazed.

"Yes, Trueman. . . . We can deceive Ash. . . ."

"How long would you expect this sort of thing to go on? And when it came to an end—and I worshiped you—what then?"

"I'd run the same risk as you."

"What off—being killed?"

"No! No! No! You're tantalizing me. You know what I mean."

"Indeed I don't. Reckon some loomed cowboys would think you mean that you risked the danger of love."

"I meant just that, Mr. Trueman Rock," she blazed. "I'm human. Those nasty gossips in town, who call my love for Ash unnatural, can't understand. . . . I've a heart, though everybody doubts it. And surely it is not beyond the bounds of possibility for me to—to love some one. Especially if he sacrificed for me—proved himself a man."

"Thiry Preston, are you offerin' such a hope to me?" he asked, huskily.

"It's not a hope, but a chance—only a chance—and all I can offer."

"But a chance—that means a lot," he went on, without remorse. "I could be with you alone."

"Yes, as long as you wished."

"Could I make love to you?"

"How could I keep you—from it?" she rejoined, her nerve visibly weakening. "But if you were kind—as I first thought you'd be—you wouldn't press—"

"Would you let me kiss you?"

"Yes," she replied, white-faced and calm.

"And would you kiss me—now—to seal the compact?" he went on, as mad in the ecstasy of the moment, as stern to convict her.

"You drive a hard bargain," she murmured, bitterly. "I've never kissed any man save Ash and Dad . . . but I will kiss you."

"Very well," he replied, with a coolness that was the most magnificent deceit.

She stood up, took brave but hesitating steps, until her knees pressed against his and as she bent over, instinctively her hands went out. Rock saw them trembling. She was going through with it. A moonbeam caught her face. Rock, who had perpetrated this monstrous hoax, uttered a cry of poignant repentance. One second more would make it too late. Her face loomed close, strong in purpose, with veiled eyes, sadder than ever.

Rock seized her hands and bending his head, he kissed one and then the other.

"Thiry," he whispered, "I would give almost my very life to have you kiss me. But not for this. . . I led you on, I wanted to see how far you would go. . . . You poor, loving, blinded girl! What would you not sacrifice for this damned Ash Preston?—I tell you—you shall not. . . . I will stay here! You have no idea what a horrible temptation you gave me. To meet you often—to have you alone—to be able to kiss you! My God! . . . Thiry! I could make you love me. . . . But so help me God, I wouldn't have your love at such sacrifice. I'll win it square and fair—or never. . . . Now, I'll go, and I'll not speak to you soon again. Trust me, Thiry. Good night."

He kissed her hands again and rushed away into the moon-streaked shadows.

Northwestern Wildcats Beat Wisconsin In Overtime Game, 31-30

PURDUE SHOWS POWER TO BEAT INDIANA, 49-30

Michigan Plays at Madison Saturday Night; Indiana vs. N. W.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(AP)—Northwestern today had a victory racked up for its first game in defense of the Big Ten basketball championship, but the Wildcats hope the rest of the schedule is not as tough as Wisconsin was last night.

Only after battling through an overtime period could Northwestern gain a 31 to 30 decision over the hugely improved Badgers. While this terrific struggle was going on, Purdue gave another big demonstration of power in mauling Indiana, 49 to 30, and Ohio State accomplished a mild upset in defeating Illinois, 29 to 23.

Northwestern's victory was scored on a field goal by Saul Farber, a brother of Maurice Farber, a Wisconsin basketball star of a few years ago. The Wildcats were outscored from the floor, but made good on 11 out of 19 free throw attempts, to more than balance things.

Badgers Lead At Half
The Wildcats were down at the end of the first half, 13 to 16, but at the start of the second session ran the count to 20 to 16. The Badgers came right back and again went into the lead, 23 to 20, only to have Northwestern gain a 29 to 27 margin. With only a few seconds left Bobby Poser sank one to tie it up.

Saul Farber intercepted a Badger pass in the overtime and dribbled in for a field goal, but a moment later Schmeling was fouled by Smith while shooting. With a chance to tie it up he made one free throw but blew the other.

Purdue turned on all its power at the start against Indiana and led by 23 to 9 at the half. Coach Lambert left his regulars in until the score was 44 to 15.

Illinois was beaten largely through long shots by Hoffer and Matteson. Ohio guards, who collected eight points between them late in the game. Illinois led, 11 to 9, at the half, and the score was tied four times in the last period.

Iowa, playing a non-conference foe, defeated Drake, 24 to 13. Minnesota preserved its spotless record with a 50 to 24 rout of North Dakota, but Chicago was less fortunate, losing to Marquette, 36 to 21.

Five Games Saturday
The firing will become general Saturday night when five games will be played. Indiana will invade Northwestern, and Purdue will seek its second straight victory at Illinois. Chicago will be host to Minnesota, and Michigan will open its schedule at Wisconsin. Iowa will meet Ohio State at Columbus in the fifth game.

Evanston, Ill.—(AP)—Northwestern's basketball team was forced to start the defense of its Big Ten title last night without anything more than the best wishes of Coach Arthur (Dutch) Lonborg.

Lonborg left Evanston late yesterday accompanying his wife to Horton, Kas., where the latter's father, J. A. Stansberger, died earlier in the day.

Ted Paysour, freshman coach, directed the Wildcats in their 31 to 30 overtime victory over Wisconsin.

VON ELM WINNER OF $300 IN PRO-AMATEUR
Santa Monica, Calif.—(AP)—George (Jix) Von Elm, Los Angeles money-golfer, who enjoyed such a prosperous year in 1931, is one tournament up on the professional pack.

Teaming with Stanley Turner, Los Angeles amateur, Von Elm yesterday won the second annual Santa Monica amateur-pro tournament and $300 first place money.

The team posted a hole-in-one card of 31-35-65, five under par, to lead 65 qualifiers by a stroke after all but failing to get into the final round of 18 holes with a 71 on Sunday. Trailing in second place were ten two-somes with 67s—good cards in the face of the cross wind which swept the course.

BABE RUTH NOW IN PERFECT CONDITION
New York—(AP)—Babe Ruth's a perfect 43 right now and in better physical condition than at any time the past four or five years.

So says Artie McGovern who has been helping Ruth keep in trim for nearly ten years. The big Yankee slugger weighs 223 1/2 pounds and measures a mere 43 inches around the waist.

The Babe has a new contract to sign with the Yankees this year and is busily engaged these days in thinking up arguments why he should not be forced to accept any salary in the $80,000 salary he is getting.

BROOKLYN RECALLS 11 PLAYERS FROM ITS HARTFORD FARM

Dizzy Vance to Head Pitching Staff; Wright Again Will Play

Note—This is another of a series on major league baseball prospects and 1932 prospects.

BY GAVILE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK—(AP)—You'll scarcely recognize the Brooklyn Dodgers, erstwhile "happiness boys of baseball," when the 1932 season rolls around.

Max Carey is authority for the statement it will be a different looking ball club.

Although the club owners have provided Carey with 12 "new" players, the inn keeper at Clearwater will require few introductions when the squad reaches training camp. Of the 11 men recalled from Hartford, Dodge farm, all but one were with the parent team at one time or another in 1931. The only bonafide new Dodger is Arthur Jones, a pitcher purchased from Kershaw, S. C.

The outstanding prospects among the Hartford contingent are four young pitchers, Phil Gullivan, Van Mungo, John Krider and Earl Mattingly. They fairly burned down the Eastern league last season, between them winning 60 games and losing 18.

Frank O'Doul, Floyd (Babe) Herman and Johnny Frederick are to return to the outfield, with Ray Bressler filling in now and then.

Del Bissonette, who recently underwent a successful operation on his throwing arm, faces no real competition a first and Walter Gilbert will return to his post at third.

Captain Glenn Wright, whose ankles failed him last season, has announced he'll be in shape again, and expects to reclaim his job at shortstop. Fresno Thompson, ailing much of last season, may lose out to Young Mickey Pinn at second.

Though his last one isn't what it used to be, Dizzy Vance is expected to head the pitching staff. Watson Clark, Ray Phelps, Adolfo Luque, Lefty Helms, Clyde Day, Austin Moore, Hollis Thurston, Joe Shante and John Quinn are other veteran hurlers at Carey's disposal.

Al Lopez and Ernest Lombardi will be back to divide the catching, with Val Picinich in reserve.

ENGLAND TO WIN DAVIS CUP NEXT YEAR—TILDEN

New York—(AP)—America's chances of lifting the Davis cup appear "extremely remote" to big Bill Tilden, world professional tennis titleholder.

"If they were playing on this side I think we would have a chance," he said, "but I doubt very much we will reach the challenge round against France. I would not be surprised to see England win the cup."

BAYS DENY SIGNING TENNESSEE GRIDDER

Green Bay—(AP)—Although reports are current that Coach Curly Lambeau has signed Herman Hickman, former University of Tennessee line star, to play with the Green Bay Packers, pro football team, next season, the Packer management today announced no word of such agreement has been received.

Shawkey Forgets Baseball To Seek Gold In Canada

BY WILL WEDGE
Copyright 1932
NEW YORK—(AP)—Of all the old familiar faces of the sports pages none faces the barrier of the new year with prospects of higher adventure than Bob Shawkey. The erstwhile skipper of the Yankees has turned his back on baseball. The lure of the north country is calling him—the north country where they don't have diamonds, grass, skin or otherwise, but they do have gold.

Gold! That's to be Shawkey's game from now on. It's an old game, the search for gold in new countries, and it has always enticed hardy adventurers. Shawkey has weathered nearly two decades of the adventures of baseball and now with enthusiasm still keen he turns to new trails for what may be the biggest thrill of his career.

SCHMELING BACK IN UNITED STATES FOR HEAVY BOUTS

First Defense of Title May Be Feb. 26 With Mickey Walker

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK—(AP)—Max Schmeling is back again, to undertake a fist program he hopes will earn him $1,000,000 in the next nine months.

It's a far cry to that day, late in 1928, when Schmeling, then an unknown German boxer fighter, first arrived in New York. Since then he has won the world's heavyweight championship and successfully defended it against Young Stribling. He already has made a fortune.

Der Maxie has three title defenses in mind for this season, against Mickey Walker, Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey but the chances are he will find the game will not be able to support more than two in the style to which heavyweight championships have been accustomed.

Schmeling's first defense will be against Mickey Walker at Miami, Fla., late in February, probably Feb. 26. Believing he will have no special trouble in disposing of Walker, Schmeling is looking ahead toward a possible meeting with Dempsey in June, probably in the Yankee Stadium here.

If Dempsey is ready to attempt a come-back at that time, then Schmeling, in the event of a victory over the old Manassa Mauler, would be ready to give Sharkey a "shot" at the title.

But if Dempsey would rather wait until September when Schmeling will wait for him, there will be no match in June and Sharkey will have to wait another year for a chance at the title he handed Max by hitting him low in their famous four round bout in the Yankee stadium, June, 1930.

Schmeling, now weighing 192 pounds, appears in excellent condition.

OCONOMOWOC RACES GET OFFICIAL OKEH

Oconomowoc—(AP)—The amateur Skating Union of the United States granted permission to the Oconomowoc chamber of commerce last night to sponsor both the men's and women's national speed skating championship here Jan. 16 and 17.

Tal E. Fitzgerald, honorary president of the A. S. U. and chairman of the national championship committee, announced a unanimous ballot was cast in favor of holding the men's title races, despite the fact the United States Olympic skating team will be unable to participate.

There will be no defending champion this year, Frank Stack, the title holder, was barred on a ruling which provides a contestant shall have lived in this country six months prior to the national meet.

Until recently Stack was a resident of Canada.

CASEY STANGEL SIGNS AS BROOKLYN COACH

New York—(AP)—Casey Stengel, recently released by the Toledo baseball club of the American association, today was signed as coach of the Brooklyn club of the National league for 1932.

In signing with Brooklyn Stengel returned to the club with which he started his major league baseball career in 1911, being purchased from Aurora of the Wisconsin-Illinois league for $300.

During his big league career he played with Pittsburgh, the Phillies, the New York Giants and the Braves. He was with Toledo as manager from 1926 until about a month ago when he was made a free agent. He played in four world's series with Brooklyn and the Giants and led Toledo to the association pennant in 1927 and won the "little world series" from Buffalo.

WHITE SOX RELEASE FIELDER TO OAKLAND

Chicago—(AP)—Outfielder George Blackaby, who has had three trials with the White Sox and one with the Cleveland Indians, has been unconditionally released to Oakland of the Pacific Coast league.

Blackaby has been a great hitter in the minors, but lack of confidence apparently ruined his chances of making good in the majors. He first came to Chicago with Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires.

College Retrenchment Plans Hurt Baseball
BY LAWRENCE PERRY
Copyright 1932
NEW YORK—(AP)—What happens when football declines in earning power is now being demonstrated throughout the country. Retrenchment is the order of the day and the athletic authorities who wish to please the faculty and trustees of their institutions are those who are submitting feasible schemes of an economical nature.

Some of the ideas are far-fetched and impracticable, if sports at the institutions in question are not to be relegated to a very minor category, while others are more conservative, hence more sane.

It is to be regretted that the Missouri Valley conference group has eliminated indoor track and baseball. Of the two, indoor track can be the better spared in the west not only because basketball gives a legitimate outlet for the pent-up spirits of winter-bound students but because there is plenty of time in the spring and early summer for activities on field and track.

But the dropping of baseball is really too bad. They had begun to pick up on the national game in the Missouri Valley and elsewhere in the west and a genuine interest was reviving. So the elimination of this sport in the valley loop—and rather a sad little loop it is after a not too good football season—will be regretted by all who hold a brief for perhaps the finest game in all its phases that exists.

On the other hand the statement of John A. Heydler, president of the National league, that baseball had in the past year shown a distinct revival on the sand lots and in the public parks, will in some measure reassure those who love baseball and have viewed with dismay its gradual decline in all colleges throughout the country into a category approximately minor.

As for football as a producer of revenue, the fact should be borne in mind that of nearly a thousand institutions of higher learning where football is played, the game is financially significant in only about 30. In fact, in hardly more than this number of institutions does the grilling game produce revenue sufficient to pay for the conduct of the game itself, let alone furnishing sinews of war for other sports.

NAVY MEN TRAIN FOR OLYMPIC TEAM PLACES

Annapolis, Md.,—(AP)—The vanguard of outstanding Navy athletes, men who are believed to have a chance of gaining berths on the Olympic teams, has begun to arrive here for work, Lieutenant Commander Harvey E. Overisch, gymnasium officer at the Naval academy said today. He has been appointed manager of the Navy Olympics team by the Bureau of Navigation at Washington.

Commander Overisch, himself a Navy athlete, said the naval service offers much material for the Olympics. A squad of some 60 men, including 30 officers, will be at work here by Jan. 20.

Headlining the arrivals is Lieutenant Harry Henderson, member of the United States' last Olympic boxing team.

Thomas J. Hickey, president of the league, was advised today that bids were being received by the United States district court at Toledo, and that they would be opened tomorrow.

Donie Rush, manager of the Chicago White Sox last year, and W. E. Chuter, former secretary of the Indianapolis club, will be among the bidders, President Hickey understood.

TOLEDO HENS GO ON BLOCK WEDNESDAY
Club Will Be Sold to Highest Bidder to Satisfy Creditors

Chicago—(AP)—The bankrupt Toledo club of the American association, purchased six years ago for $175,000, will be sold tomorrow to the highest bidder.

Thomas J. Hickey, president of the league, was advised today that bids were being received by the United States district court at Toledo, and that they would be opened tomorrow.

Donie Rush, manager of the Chicago White Sox last year, and W. E. Chuter, former secretary of the Indianapolis club, will be among the bidders, President Hickey understood.

The Toledo club was thrown into the hands of receivers last season, and several efforts to sell it, at a figure somewhere near the original cost, failed.

DAVE MAIER, ABIE BAIN FIGHT IN N. B. A. MEET

Chicago—(AP)—Dave Maier, hard hitting left handed light heavyweight of Milwaukee, was matched today for a ten round engagement with Abie Bain, Newark, N. J., supporting the King Levisky-Paulino London light at the Chicago Stadium, Jan. 17.

The Maier-Bain bout was ordered by General John V. Clinan, president of the National Boxing Association, and will count in the elimination tournament to select a successor to Moe Rosenbloom, dethroned champion. Both Maier and Bain came through successfully in the first round of the tournament.

Maier recently defeated Rosenbloom at Milwaukee, winning the decision. The bout was not at championship weight, however.

AL BROWN TROUNCED BY SPEEDY DADO IN 10

Los Angeles—(AP)—Al Brown's western invasion has been anything but a success. The bulky Panamanian Nera who holds the world's bantamweight championship, last night dropped his second boxing match within a few weeks, Speedy Dado of the Philippines, soundly trouncing him in a ten round bout. The title was not at stake.

In his first start here Brown lost a decision to Newboy Brown, local boxer.

Dado showed plenty of speed last night and dominated at virtually all times. Dado weighed 113 1/2 pounds while the champion's weight was 120 1/2.

MARQUETTE U. BEATS CHICAGO QUINTET 36-21

Victory Is Second of Season Over Western Conference Team

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—Marquette University's cage team scored its second victory of the season over a Big Ten conference quintet last night by defeating the University of Chicago, 36 to 21.

A field goal by Al Shipley, co-captain, put the Hilltoppers into a lead which they never relinquished, although Captain Ashley of Chicago tied the score a moment later with two free throws. Marquette led at the half, 23 to 10.

Chicago's offense, comparatively weak at the start, firmed up in the final period and both teams were setting a furious pace when the game ended.

KIMBERLY CLUBBERS DEFEAT TWO RIVERS

Papermakers Stage Great Rally in Third Quarter to Cop Decision

Special to Post-Crescent
Kimberly—The Kimberly Club's basketball team met its strongest opposition this season when it clashed with the strong American Legion squad from Two Rivers recently at the clubhouse, and defeated it by a 38 to 28 score. The score at all stages of the game was close, and only in the third period did the Clubbers have an advantage. At the end of the first quarter the score was 8 to 7 with the Papermakers on the long end.

In the second period the visitors came back strong and at the end of the half held the lead by a 18 to 11 count. The third period witnessed a right about face for the Papermakers and playing heads up half they staged a scoring rampage that raised their total to 27, while the defensive ball rallied one point on a Two Rivers aggression, playing free throw for 17 points. Both teams scored the same number of points in the last period but the Papermakers spirit in the third period was too much for the visitors.

The game scheduled between the Kimberly team and the Onoda "Indians" for Wednesday evening at the clubhouse has been called off. The next home game for the Clubbers will be played Jan. 11 with New Holstein city team as opposition.

Los Angeles—Speedy Dado, Philippines, outpointed Panama Al Brown, Panama (10).

LESSONS WILL BE LEARNED AS FOG OF DEPRESSION LIFTS

Present Investment Theories All Seem Fallacious

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)

New York—When the fog of industrial depression and financial uncertainty which has enveloped us so long lifts we shall be able to see more than the lessons to be learned therefrom. For the present it seems as if all of our investment theories were fallacious and our investment practices faulty. Look at the record.

The first delusion to vanish was that a diversified list of equities was all that was necessary for safe and profitable keeping of funds. We lost that idea about a year ago. Then we turned to the older proposition that diversification between fixed interest bearing obligations and fixed rate preferred stocks with a proportion of common stocks assured success. Even that does not look certain now. We thought that no matter what might happen to stocks bonds moving sedately could be relied upon.

It is hard to maintain that faith in the face of what has happened in the bond market in the latter half of 1931. The preferred stocks fell last of all. Trust in them held up longer than in any other kind of security but even that has been shaken. It is a melancholy recital.

Then we thought that because we had such a wealth of statistical material, analyses and charts of every kind and from that they would protect us from drawing erroneous conclusions. They didn't help. Those of us who could not interpret the statistics and could not read the charts relied upon the experts for advice but we relied in vain. The experts failed as miserably as the tyros. Remember when he said that if you would "investigate before you invest" or if you would "ask your banker" you couldn't go astray. Well, even those of us who followed that sage suggestion are not much better off.

The fact is that if there were investment "counselors," economists, or bankers that foresaw the depth and width of this depression they kept their information to themselves. Oh, yes, there may have been exceptions but they were exceptions.

If you do not believe, I ask the bankers who sold the bonds to the public at prices anywhere from 30 to 90 per cent above the price level existing today, or if that is not enough obtain their permission to examine their own portfolios. I do not propose to leave the discussion here.

ARRANGE PLANS FOR NATIONAL RADIO EXHIBIT

Tenth Annual Chicago Show Scheduled for Jan. 18 to 24 at Chicago

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1932, By Cons. Press
Washington—(CPA)—Determined to make 1932 a boom year for radio, a portion of the radio industry will devote from the policy of the past decade by staging a national radio show during the first month of the year.

The tenth annual Chicago Radio-Electrical show will hold away from January 18 to 24 as both a trade and public exhibition, displaying all that is new in radio styles. Household electrical appliances also will be exhibited. In the past the trade shows have been held in the spring, for the introduction of the following year's styles in radio.

As a part of the exposition, the radio wholesalers association and the national federation of radio associations will hold their conventions.
The radio manufacturers association representing the set manufacturers themselves, however, will not hold its annual convention until the end of May also at Chicago.

Change in Methods
The move for a January show represents a change in merchandising methods by the industry. Complete new lines and new models will be on exhibit by leading manufacturers, according to Arthur Stringer, director of the project. The idea is to take up the time of the show has existed between the time of the show in the spring and delivery in the fall. Thus there can be no chance for a change in models during that interim—a condition which has caused many of the public to shy clear of purchasing sets early in the new year.

Television again will be a central attraction. There will be constant showings of television on a three-foot screen, while a giant screen, possibly of 25 feet, will be used for feature television shows supervised by U. A. Sanabria, the young Chicago inventor, who last year started the radio world with 10-foot television pictures.

In connection with the R. M. A. trade show in May, it is explained by the association that the show has been timed to dovetail with the national political conventions as a probable great stimulus to radio sales. The show will be staged from May 23 to 26, which will give the industry three weeks in which to take advantage of politics to make sales.
The republican national convention is scheduled for June 13 at Chicago, and the democratic convention about July 1.

Despite unfavorable business conditions, the R. M. A. announces that the radio industry went through 1931 without a major failure or considerable surplus stocks. The industry estimates that between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 sets were sold during the calendar year; that there are not some 16,000,000 sets now in use in this country, and that the size of the radio audience, figuring about four listeners to a set is about 64,000,000. The price of sets was lower in 1931 particularly because of the popularity of the midsize set.
Some 75 per cent of the 1931 sales were midsize and the average price per set was placed at about $75.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
"CAPRICORN"

If January 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 12:30 p. m. to 1:50 p. m. and from 7
p. m. to 8:40 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and from 8:40 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Astrological influences on January 6th should be beneficial in their effect, and many opportunities will be offered for improvement. Where there has been recent illness or disability, the physical health will improve greatly. An auspicious time for starting new ventures.

The child born on this January 6th will be gentle at heart, a lover of the beautiful, and liable to extremes of emotion. It will have a keen artistic sense, but a poor head for business. It will be very affectionate and demonstrative. It will be fond of reading, and indifferent to sports.

If born January 6th, you are bound to push ahead in life because of the following salient points in your character: pluck, push, patience and perseverance. You are not dependent upon any social status into which you may have been born "to get on" in this world, for you have the qualities within which are essential to real success.

You are not fettered by false pride, held back by foolish fears, or weakened by self-indulgence. You are a fighter, and will never take a back seat so long as there is a passage way to the front.

Good principles, courteous manners, a kind heart, a humorous tongue, a generous hand, and a winning smile have endeared you to your associates. To know you is to like you. There may be some who fear you as a competitor, but you are loved by none. You are a square scooter in every phase of life, and an obligation to you is something to be paid in full. You are a quick thinker, and your decisions are followed by actions.

Your horoscope reveals that you will move in some sphere that brings you before many people. You will go more by intellect than intuition—your sense of logic is well developed.

Successful People Born January 6th:
1—Thomas Chittenden—statesman.
2—Charles Sumner—statesman.
3—James A. Burden—manufacturer.
4—Clarence King—geologist and author.

5—Henry E. Dixey—actor.
6—Joan of Arc—French heroine.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe,
Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 1/2 ounces of Piner, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Piner is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritation.

Do not accept a substitute for Piner.
It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

WHO'S NEW IN CONGRESS

Walter G. Andrews

Buffalo, N. Y.—(CP)—Walter G.
Andrews, republican, new representative from the fourth New York district, was

Andrews

born with a silver spoon in his mouth but threw it away to answer the call of adventure.

He played end for Princeton and later was head coach for a time. He worked at various times in the grain fields of the Canadian northwest and in the lumber camps of the northern woods.

Finally he settled down to a factory job in the paint and varnish plant of a company founded by his father.

When America entered the world war, the love of adventure awoke again, and he became Captain Andrews of the machine gun company, 107th infantry, 27th N. Y. division.
He came out of the war with the distinguished service cross and a valor citation.

Captain Andrews returned to his old job but soon found that he had a flair for politics.

MILWAUKEE FIRE LOSS
UNDER $1,000,000 MARK

Milwaukee—(CP)—Milwaukee's fire loss was below $1,000,000 in 1931 for the first time since 1920, according to Fire Chief Peter Steinkeller. The loss was $885,000 in 1920. Chief Steinkeller said the loss for the first ten months of 1931 was $772,000 and that he was confident when the year's complete losses were computed the total would be much below $1,000,000.

Phoenicians are said to have come upon glass making when the crew of a Phoenician vessel landed on a Palestine river bank to prepare food.
No rocks were available so the seamen used lumps of soda from their cargo to support their cooking utensils. Heat of the fire fused the beach sand and soda, forming a transparent mass.

REPORTER BARRED IN MURDER TRIAL

Judge Refuses to Admit Any Representative of Knoxville Newspaper

Mt. Sterling, Ky.—(CP)—Jack Bryan, reporter for the Knoxville News-Sentinel, was barred from the courtroom here Monday by Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt who is presiding in the murder conspiracy trial of William Hightower, Harlan-co mine union leader.

Bryan came to report the Hightower trial after Judge Prewitt had barred John T. Moutoux, News-Sentinel reporter, on the grounds stories Moutoux wrote after the W. B.
Jones trial were unfair to the court.

When court opened today William H. Townsend, Lexington attorney, presented Bryan as a reporter for the News-Sentinel and said Bryan had not familiarized himself with labor disorders in Harlan-co and had never attended any trials in Judge Prewitt's court.

Judge Prewitt promptly barred Bryan and decreed:
"Until the News-Sentinel retracts their false and slanderous statements about my court and the courts of Kentucky, none of its representatives can sit in my court."

Townsend took exception to the court's ruling and indicated the action would be carried to higher courts.

$150,000 LOSS WHEN LODGE HALL IS BURNED

Boston—(CP)—Fire early Monday destroyed the Odd Fellows building, large five story stone building in the south end, with loss estimated by Fire Chief Henry Fox at $150,000.
Several firemen were injured and two hundred guests were driven from their rooms in the adjoining Hotel Charendon.

Two women and two young men, occupants of rooms on the third floor of the Odd Fellows block were taken to City hospital suffering from exposure. Five alarm brought apparatus from all sections of the city.

The condition among cows known as "salt sick" has been found, according to the American Dairy Science Association, to be caused by a deficiency of copper and iron in the diet.
